Two Women Cremated In Auto Crash At Dana Point

TWO OTHERS NEAR DEATH IN HOSPITAL

Long Beach Man Today Faces Murder Charges; Seven Hurt in Collisions
27 PERSONS INJURED

Downey Man Crashes Into Bridge at Newport and Suffers Skull Fracture

TRAPPED IN their burning automobile after a terrific head-on crash on the Coast highway in Dana Point, a mother and daughter were burned to death yesterday morning while injuries in the same wreck may claim the life of two other persons. The crash resulted in serious injuries to the husband and father of the two victims, placed four other persons in hospitals, two in jail and may result in murder charges against an alleged drunken driver.

The tragic wreck was one of 13 reported over the weekend in the county, which claimed a total of two victims and 27 persons injured. The deaths were the eighth and ninth in the county this year from traffic accidents.

Al Brown, 40, Long Beach boat builder and driver of the car which caused the deaths of Mrs. Jennie Orinstein, 45, and her daughter, Beverly Orinstein, 23, 559 1-2 North Gardner street, Los Angeles, already has been charged with drunken driving and may face murder charges. Three physicians who examined him after the wreck at the Orange county hospital pronounced him completely intoxicated, which will make it legally possible to file murder charges, since the impact of the wreck was directly responsible for the deaths of the women.

Critically Injured
Miss Mildred Beckman, 26, school teacher living in the Hotel Kipling, Los Angeles, and owner of the burned car, is in a critical condition in the Santa Ana Valley hospital. She is confined with cuts and bruises, and Max Devitt, 39, brother of Mrs. Orinstein, is suffering from an injured hip, burns and severe lacerations on the forehead.

Herman F. Tella, 18, and William Dugan, 19, companions and employees of Brown, were severely cut and bruised and were given first aid treatment at the Orange county hospital before being taken to the county jail, where they were booked for investigation of manslaughter. Both were intoxicated, officers said, and were returning from Tia Juana.

The accident occurred at 10 a. m. yesterday at the intersection of Copper Lantern street and the Coast highway, on a slight grade. Devitt told officers that the Brown machine, traveling north, swerved at him without warning across the wide four lane highway. Devitt, proceeding in the opposite direction, turned first to the right and then back to the left to avoid a collision but the cars crashed.

DRUNK DRIVING DEATHS SOAR IN STATE FOLLOWING REPEAL

CONVICTS FAIL IN ATTEMPT TO BREAK PRISON

One Prisoner Killed When He Gets in Way of San Quentin Desperadoes

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, March 12.—(UP)—Using home-made pistols and ammunition, three desperate convicts killed another prisoner, tied up several other convicts and a guard in the prison electric shop today and attempted to escape over the wall.

Their escape was foiled by four guards, three of whom were unharmed. The guards rushed the men, grappled with them and managed to subdue them.

Warden James Holohan said E. A. McNab, San Francisco felon, was the ringleader. He said McNab shot and killed John H. Arbuckle, another convict, apparently when Arbuckle got in the way. McNab's companions, Holohan said, were William Bagley and Lewis H. Downs, purportedly members of McNab's gang before they were imprisoned.

Brandish Pistols
The three were performing routine tasks in the electric shop when suddenly they brandished pistols, lined up the others present, then calmly bound Guard Fred H. Miller and several convicts who objected. It was at this juncture that Arbuckle was shot.

Holohan said McNab derided Miller, donned his uniform and then, concealed by a dense fog which apparently the gang had awaited to enhance their escape, fled from the electric shop to the wall.

McNab yelled to Guard E. L. Williamson who was posted on the wall, to help him throw a wire over the wall. He told Williamson it was a new line they were running from the electric shop. Williamson became suspicious and raised his rifle. The convicts opened fire and Williamson fired back. The shots brought Guards Fred Hogeboom, captain of the jute mill; Robert Posthumus and Neils Peterson who were armed only with clubs.

Rush Convicts
Obvious of flying bullets, the three rushed the frenzied convicts.

FIRST LADY STARTS PORTO RICAN TOUR

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, March 12.—(UP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt left today on a two-day tour of Porto Rico, to see at first hand the living condition of working women.

The president's wife was accompanied by Assistant Secretary Agriculture Rexford G. Tugwell, Miss Rose Schneiderman, an old friend and member of the NRA labor advisory board, and others. She was trailed by policemen whose escort she had refused.

At San German, the party will spend the night and see the oldest church in the Western Hemisphere. Tomorrow Mrs. Roosevelt will go to Ponce on the south coast and back across the island, through the mountains of San Juan.

LINCOLN ELLSWORTH RETURNS TO COAST

LOS ANGELES, March 12.—(UP)—Dr. Lincoln Ellsworth, noted aerial explorer, may make another aerial expedition into the antarctic regions next fall, it was learned today.

Plans for a second flight into the frozen regions of the South Pole will be held in abeyance until he discussed the matter at full length with his pilot, Bert Balchen, Ellsworth said. The explorer came to Los Angeles with his wife to await the arrival of Balchen and his plane from New Zealand. The plans in its first flight was damaged when caught in a crevasse by a shifting ice pack.

Three Year Old Saves Tot From Rooster

MODESTO, Cal., March 12.—(UP)—Three-year-old Don Lee Oldenhouse was a hero today.

The tot, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Oldenhouse of Modesto, saved 2-year-old Marjorie Pope from possible serious injuries when she was attacked by a large rooster while they were visiting on a nearby ranch.

"I kicked him as best I could," Don explained after he had driven the bird away. Little Marjorie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pope, was cut badly about the face and bruised by the enraged fowl.

TROOPS GUARD LIMA JAIL AS TRIALS START

Threats of Break Repeated as Harry Pierpont is Adjudged Guilty

LIMA, O., March 12.—(UP)—A small army of national guardsmen nervously patrolled their barracks today at the county jail where three members of the John Dillinger gang of Indiana outlaws confidently awaited the promised appearance of their leader.

A virtual state of martial law was established about the jail and court house. Brigadier General Harold Bush of the Ohio National Guard doubled his guards following the conviction of Harry Pierpont, one of the gang members, on charges of killing Sheriff Jess O. Sarber. The conviction, without recommendation for mercy, was tantamount to a death sentence which will be pronounced next Thursday.

Unusual military orders were issued for opening of trial today of Charles Mackley and Russell Clark, who with Pierpont were accused of killing Sarber. The trio, it is charged, shot Sarber down last fall in order to free Dillinger from the Lima jail. The raid on the Lima jail was in payment for Dillinger's aid in their own break from the Indiana state prison at Michigan City, Ind.

In Crown Point a special grand jury started an investigation of the jail break on the day that Dillinger was to have gone on trial on charges of killing Policeman William P. O'Malley, East Chicago patrolman.

Two Crown Point jail attaches are alleged to have aided the outlaw's escape. They are Ernest Blum, deputy sheriff, and Sam Cahoon, turnkey.

BANK DEPOSIT BILL IS REPORTED OUT

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(UP)—The senate banking committee today voted to report favorably a bill extending the temporary phase of the bank deposit insurance act for another year and a bill to guarantee the principal of the home owner's loan corporation.

Both are administration measures. The proposal for continuance of the deposit insurance on a temporary basis for another year was urged by President Roosevelt in a letter to Chairman Duncan U. Fletcher, Dem., Fla., of the banking committee. Mr. Roosevelt suggested that this would give additional time to study operation of the law before making it permanent.

Under the temporary plan, deposits up to $2500 are insured in full.

SUPPLY SHIP BACK
WELLINGTON, N. Z., March 12.—(UP)—The steamship Bear of Oakland, supply ship for the Byrd Antarctic expedition, arrived at Chalmers today after two weeks of fighting its way through gales and high seas from the Bay of Whales, the expedition's base.

PEGGED PRICES ARE DEMANDED OF ROOSEVELT

Governors of Four Midwest States Submit Program to Chief Executive

DES MOINES, Ia., March 12.—Governors of four midwest states, backed by the leaders of two farmers' organizations, today submitted to President Roosevelt a program calling for pegged agricultural prices and compulsory crop reduction.

The program was formulated at a meeting of governors and their representatives from five states and was the outgrowth of theories advanced by Milo Reno, president of the Farmers' Holiday association.

Although a similar plan was attacked last year by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, speakers at the conference said it was the only method by which any permanent stabilization of the farm problem could be reached.

Pending receipt at the White House of the program, no exact details could be revealed. It was known, however, that the program contained the following points:

1. Recognition of agriculture as a major industry and subject to regulation under the NRA or as a utility;
  2. Fixing of cost of production plus a fair profit prices for farmers;
  3. Compulsory fixing of crop control plans on all basic farm commodities.
- With the support of the Farmers' Holiday association and the Farmers' union, two militant organizations whose members engaged in last fall's farm strikes, the governors were expected to seek congressional action for the program.

BILTMORE HOTEL IS ROBBED BY BANDITS

LOS ANGELES, March 12.—(UP)—Two bandits held up Edward Kuskey, auditor of the Biltmore hotel, shortly after he had opened the office safe today, and escaped with between $800 and $900, according to reports to the police.

When Kuskey went into his office he noted two men loitering in the lobby nearby. He had just opened the safe when one of the pair stuck a gun through the cashier's window and ordered him to "hoist 'em."

ALFRED READ WILL AID FORMER WIFE

HOLLYWOOD, March 12.—(UP)—Alfred R. Read Jr., former sweetheart of Claire Windsor, is going to be on the other side of the fence at the retrial of his former wife's $100,000 alienation of affections suit against the actress.

Read, now serving a 30-day jail sentence for allegedly stealing $11 from Miss Windsor, announced he will testify in behalf of his former wife, Marian, when the suit is retried. He was a principal witness for Miss Windsor at the first trial which resulted in Mrs. Read obtaining a $75,000 verdict, only to have it set aside later when a new trial was ordered.

Late News Flashes

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(UP)—Nine airmail routes are expected to be resumed tomorrow, Postmaster General James A. Farley said late today.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 12.—(UP)—The state department of education today received a check for $2,500,000 from the federal government to help in restoring school buildings destroyed by the Southern California earthquake a year ago.

40 Per Cent Increase Is Brought Out

Chief of Highway Patrol Issues Warning in Face of Facts, Figures

SACRAMENTO, March 12.—An appalling increase of 40 per cent in fatalities in California involving drunken drivers today brought an announcement from E. Raymond Cato, chief of the California Highway Patrol, that persons arrested on drunken driving charges need expect no leniency, inasmuch as courts have shown a desired inclination to mete out the extreme punishment as required by law.

Reports received by the patrol, Cato said, for January of this year indicate an increase of more than 11 per cent in fatalities involving drunken drivers over January of 1933, and February figures appear to indicate an increase that is even greater.

"Our figures for the full year of 1933 show an appalling increase," the report stated. "Indeed, they show a 40 per cent increase in fatal accidents involving drunken driving and a 26 per cent increase in all types of accidents in which drinking played a part."

"We must face the facts. We cannot disregard these figures. Therefore, I call upon every citizen who believes in the enjoyment of personal liberty to assist us in stamping out this evil. Unless we do this the very thing we have been fighting for assuredly will be disgraced."

The report stated that for several weeks the California Highway patrol has watched with growing concern the alarming rate of increase of accidents in which drunken driving was involved in California.

"I am particularly disappointed," Cato declared in the report, "over the figures, because I had felt the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment would not only put an end to intolerable conditions that were breeding crime but would also result in less drinking, particularly among our young people."

"It is my belief that these figures do not reflect a permanent condition, and that after the first period of celebrating the new

ITALY WILL ACT TO INSURE OWN PEACE

ROME, March 12.—(UP)—Italy, disgusted with the trend of European diplomacy, has decided to take direct action to insure its own peace. The decision will be announced today when Chancellor Engelbert Dollfus of Austria and Premier Giulio Giombole of Hungary confer here Wednesday with Premier Benito Mussolini.

As part of Mussolini's decision to make his own diplomatic agreements in an effort to prevent a realignment in central Europe which he believes would mean war, he has decided, it was learned authoritatively, to have Italy represented for the present at large conferences of powers only in an observing capacity, awaiting some suggestion from other nations he believes might be useful.

MODIFICATION OF BILL IS AGREED ON

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(UP)—Modification of drastic provisions of the Fletcher-Rayburn stock market control bill has been agreed upon by the senate banking committee, Ferdinand Pecora, counsel, said today.

Substantial revision was believed to be the first step in putting the measure in shape satisfactory to administration leaders.

Margin requirements, credit control operations, the provision of composite reporting, and several other less important phases, will be modified, it was said.

AIRMAIL SERVICE IN NATION IS HALTED ON ORDER ISSUED BY PRESIDENT SUNDAY NIGHT

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(UP)—The motors of American air mail planes were silent today as the army and postoffice departments labored to restore quickly the service on a safety first basis, probably within 24 hours.

The safety first order came after a sharp demand from President Roosevelt that hazards resulting in deaths of 10 army fliers in three weeks be eliminated. It followed also a week-end conference of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh with Secretary of War George Dern.

Dern said Lindbergh had been called in for his technical advice and aid.

In the airmail crisis growing out of cancellation of private airmail contracts last month, interest was high as to any part Lindbergh might play either in an overhauling of the army service or in reorganization of the private industry to which the mails will be returned through an administrative measure shortly to be passed by congress.

Hearings Open
The committee hoped to report the bill by the end of the week. Opposition to the space rate features of the bill cropped out at the house postoffice committee hearing which also started work on the legislation designed to take the place of the air mail contracts cancelled by Postmaster General James A. Farley recently.

Logan interrupted testimony by W. W. Howes, first assistant postmaster general, to complain that the bill, in its present form, is "too iron-clad."

He suggested modification of provisions denying contractors the privilege of transferring their contracts to other companies, limiting route extensions to 100 miles and refusing contracts to any person entering into a combination to prevent competitive bidding.

QUAKE SHAKES NEVADA, IDAHO, WYOMING, UTAH

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, March 12.—(UP)—A 7.5 earthquake, centering in Utah and spreading to the adjoining states of Idaho, Nevada and Wyoming, rocked this city today and, in some instances, caused a near panic, although no extensive damage was done.

In Salt Lake, and neighboring towns—principally Logan and Ogden—buildings swayed, lights swung back and forth from their chains and clocks stopped.

Plaster was cracked on many walls but, overshadowing the hazard of the quake was the fear of citizens.

Buildings were vacated by the dozens.

The first shock was felt here at 8:06 a. m. It was a severe jolt. In the United Press bureau, on the fourth floor of the Tribune building, an automatic printer-telegraph machine was moved from its base and a typewriter went slithering across the floor.

Minor shocks followed the first jolt. At 11:20 a. m. MST, another severe shock was felt—although it was considerably milder than the first. It added to the fear of "earthquake conscious" Salt Lake City, however, and public schools were dismissed. Also, here, several of the city's older buildings were vacated.

The quake, seemingly, had its source in a fault in the Wasatch range, 30 miles south of here, and from there spread 200 miles to the north and east and west. It terminated in the north near Pocatello, Ida., and apparently spent its force on the east in the vicinity of Rock Springs, Wyo. To the west, it was felt as far away as 50 miles east of Elko, Nev., about 250 miles from the shock's origin.

Severe At Logan

Although it originated in the vicinity of Salt Lake, the quake was more severe at Logan than here. The damage locally was minor in character, in Logan the cracks in walls were more severe. The home economics building of the Utah agricultural college in Logan was damaged and the building ordered vacated.

The building, a three-story one, was deemed unsafe for occupancy after the first shock. Inspectors said the building probably was safe but that, as a precautionary measure, it should not be occupied until its exact condition had been definitely determined by an inspection.

Instruments at the University of Utah were dismantled, so exact information could not be determined. Reports from the university of Nevada at Reno, however, placed the quake in the Wasatch range.

A minor shock was reported also from Santa Rosa, Cal., but, scientists said, it was unrelated to the local series of tremors. The shock affecting Utah, Idaho, eastern Nevada and western Wyoming was local in character, originating not more than 30 miles from here.

The streets in the cities affected were lined with people. Buildings contained less persons than at any time in years.

MEASURE IS PASSED OVER VETO THREAT

Bill Calls for Immediate Payment of Adjusted Service Certificates
VOTE IS 295 TO 125

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(UP)—The house passed the $2,400,000,000 greenback-bonus bill today in the face of President Roosevelt's veto threat. The vote was 295 to 125.

The measure, providing for immediate payment of the adjusted service certificates in $2,000,000,000 of "new money," now goes to the senate where administration leaders expect it to be sent down to the defeat they were unable to obtain from an unruly house.

Passage came late today at conclusion of most dramatic of sessions.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(UP)—The house broke with the administration today on the soldiers bonus issue, voting to act on the Patman $2,400,000,000 inflation-bonus bill. The vote was 313 to 104.

A total of 247 Democrats, 61 Republicans and 5 Farmer Laborites voted for the motion.

Against the motion were 35 Democrats and 49 Republicans.

The roll call on the consideration motion for western states included:

The test vote, a forerunner of house approval of the bill later, was on a motion to discharge the ways and means committee from further consideration of the measure, a procedure which made the bonus legislation the order of business in the chamber.

The veterans' bloc victory came in the face of a threat by President Roosevelt to veto the bonus bill, and as Democratic ranks were in disorder over the bonus and the entire question of economies in veterans' compensation.

The one sided vote, more than two-thirds of the house membership, surpassed expectations of veterans' bloc leaders. They admitted that some of those who voted for consideration of the bill might vote against it on final passage.

"However," said Patman, "it means we should pass the bill by a two-third vote, sufficient to serve notice to the president of the stand of the house on the issue."

In an effort to rush action on the bill, it was agreed to limit general debate on the measure to two hours. Amendments may then be offered.

REPORTED MARY AND DOUG MAY RE-UNITE

LONDON, March 12.—(UP)—Reports that a reconciliation is impending between Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, estranged idols of the screen, persisted here today.

There seemed some basis for belief that negotiations between the two were in progress. The Sunday Express said that long transatlantic telephone calls had been exchanged and that an agreement was in prospect.

Fairbanks kept aloof from reporters, however. He was named recently in a divorce suit by Lord Ashley, while Miss Pickford has filed suit for divorce in California.

JUDGMENT STAY IS GRANTED PRODUCERS

LONDON, March 12.—(UP)—The court of appeals today granted the application of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company for a stay of execution of judgment obtained against it by Princess Lina Alexandrovna, pending hearing of an appeal.

However, the court ordered that the company should pay the principle of the judgment ($25,387) of the 25,000 pounds ($129,375) awarded her by a jury which held she was libelled in the company's film Rasputin.

40 PER CENT INCREASE IS BROUGHT OUT

found liberties is over, our people will return to normalcy and will be less inclined to drink to excess as the novelty wears off. Meanwhile, we must face the facts.

"Alcoholic beverages have been enjoyed by mankind for centuries. But our ancestors enjoyed them under different circumstances. There was not one motor vehicle for every 2.5 persons and wonderful highways conducive to fast travel as there now is in California. We must recognize that conditions are different and govern ourselves accordingly.

"No man who has been drinking is a safe driver. He may think so, but he is not.

"It is the duty of every person who has been drinking intoxicating liquors, or who expects to attend any sort of gathering where excessive quantities of intoxicating liquors are consumed, to refrain from driving. It is also the moral duty of every person to assume responsibility for seeing that his friends do not drive such such circumstances.

"The officers of the California Highway Patrol have been instructed to enforce the law rigidly against those apprehended driving while drunk. Such person need expect no leniency, as our courts have shown a desired inclination to mete out the extreme punishment for drunken driving as required by law."

INSULL MUST LEAVE GREECE THIS WEEK

ATHENS, March 12.—(UP)—Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Roumania, Luxembourg, Great Britain and Canada were rumored today as possible destinations of Samuel Insull, Chicago utilities man, apparently doomed at last to seek refuge elsewhere against the efforts of the United States government to make him stand trial on charges of irregularities in the collapse of his companies.

Though the network of American extradition treaties now covers most of the world, Insull might hope to plead in some country that he was a victim of persecution and could not be extradited because the offenses with which he is charged in the United States were not an offense in that particular country.

Insull now has been notified, apparently finally, that he must leave by Thursday or be put on a ship for New York.

AIRMAIL SERVICE IN NATION IS HALTED ON ORDER ISSUED BY PRESIDENT SUNDAY NIGHT

"Who's going to determine whether anyone has entered into such a combination?" Logan asked.

"The postmaster general," replied Howes.

"How will he know?"

Howes said, "the contracting party will have a right to protest the action."

Access to Courts

Logan agreed that anyone refused the right to bid would have access to the courts, but said he did not believe it wise to "punish innocent stockholders because some agent they selected violated the law."

Howes gave hearty support to the measure and told the committee it was "absolutely essential to require competitive bidding on all contracts."

Logan suggested that the postmaster general should be given power to determine whether contracts could be transferred.

"That provision was put in the bill to prevent the service from becoming a monopoly," Howes said.

Howes said the measure was intended to carry out suggestions made by President Roosevelt in a letter to Chairman Kenneth D. McKellar on March 7 asking that contracts be returned to private operators under competitive bidding on a three year period.

The bill drawn up by the post-office department provides that the postmaster general is authorized to award contracts for the transportation of mail by aircraft for periods not exceeding three years at a rate not to exceed 30 cents per airplane mile with a definite weight basis of one cubic foot of space being considered as the equivalent of 10 pounds of airmail.

ALFRED JACOBSEN CALLED BY DEATH

Alfred Jacobsen, 29, died at his home in Santa Ana yesterday following a brief illness. Death is believed to have been caused from pneumonia, according to the coroner's office. He had been ill but three or four days.

He was a native son of Orange county, having been born in Placentia. He was a pipefitter by vocation, and had lived in Santa Ana for about four months.

He was the husband of Hollis Bowe Jacobsen and son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Jacobsen of Fullerton.

Funeral services will be held from the chapel of the Smith and Tutill Funeral home, Sixth and Broadway, tomorrow at 2 p. m.

Interment will be made in Loma Vista cemetery at Fullerton.

TWO BURNED TO DEATH IN DANA POINT CRASH

Bursts Into Flames
The light sedan driven by Devitt was hurled across the highway, where it burst into flames while standing upright. Injured persons from both cars were strewn around the wreckage but Devitt, Mrs. Orinstein and her daughter seemed stunned and remained in the machine. Bystanders pulled Devitt from the driver's seat but the flames were burning so fiercely that it was impossible to free the two women in the back seat.

While little Sheila Mae danced around the car helplessly and a large crowd of onlookers were forced to stand by, the fire consumed the car and burned the bodies of the women beyond recognition. The charred remains were taken to the Divel mortuary in San Clemente, where an inquest will be held later pending the conclusion of the other persons in the crash.

California Highway Patrolmen Lloyd Groover and Ben Craig took charge of the investigation of the wreck. Craig took the injured persons from the Devitt car to the Santa Ana hospital, where the little girl is said to have refused medical attention until her father was taken care of.

Tella and Duggan, both of whom said they were virtually asleep and knew nothing of the accident, denied knowledge that the women were in the car and said they understood that everyone had been pulled free. The companions of Brown were taken to the hospital and later to the county jail by Officer Groover.

Crashes Into Bridge

A fractured skull was sustained by Jim Tweedy, 24, Downey, who drove his car into the side of the bridge over the bay on Newport boulevard Saturday night while on his way to Newport. He was taken to the Newport Beach hospital for first aid treatment, transferred to the county hospital and finally taken to a reported in a very serious condition.

Romance involved in a wedding trip to Yuma, was interrupted at 7 a. m. yesterday when a car driven by Curtis Turk, 22, San Pedro sailor, overturned on the Santa Ana canyon road at Taft avenue. Turk received a fractured jaw and his wife, 20, is still unconscious in St. Joseph's hospital from serious injuries. Another couple with the Turks escaped injury. A blood-covered marriage license on the highway led to the deduction that Turk and his new wife were returning from their marriage in Arizona.

Turk was transferred from the local hospital to the San Pedro naval hospital yesterday.

Epidemic Rodents, 228 West Maple avenue, Fullerton, sustained scalp lacerations, back injuries and a mutilated little finger in a wreck in Buena Park at 9 p. m. Saturday. He was brought to the Orange County hospital and is confined in a serious condition.

Four El Modena Mexicans were hurt at 2:30 a. m. today when their car overturned near Orange. All were brought to the Orange County hospital for emergency treatment. Those hurt were Frank Rivera, 35, cuts and bruises on the face; Jose Gutierrez, 38, driver of the car, possible fractured left leg; Frank Pineda, 28, cuts and bruises, and Ignacio Ybera, 28, cuts and bruises. The men were intoxicated, according to hospital reports.

Woman Injured
Mrs. W. R. Crawford, 25, 302 East St. Gertrude's place and Mrs. C. W. Eckles, 23, 2067 South Rose street, sustained minor injuries at 2:30 a. m. yesterday when a car driven by J. C. Flasher, 26, Pasadena, struck a parked truck at Bishop and South Main streets.

W. R. Crawford, husband of the injured woman, escaped injury. The women were given treatment by a physician and taken to their homes.

Bill Goodman, 2010 South Oak street and an unknown youth of the same address, were hurt at 6 p. m. Saturday near the bridge on North Main street when their motorcycle crashed into the rear of a truck driven by Sherman Robinson, 19, Garden Grove.

Esther Runnels, 23, Tustin, received an injured elbow at noon Saturday when her car and a machine driven by Ray W. Stiggers, 26, Calexico, collided at First and Lacy streets. She was treated by a physician and taken home.

Four persons were hurt at 8:50 a. m. yesterday when a car driven by Charles Pearson, 44, First and Verrano roads, was involved in a peculiar accident on Bryant avenue in Los Alamitos. Brown said that a car was parked on the highway without lights and to avoid it, swerved his car to the right and caused it to overturn three times. ## WILL ROGERS says:

SANTA MONICA, March 12.—(To the Editor of The Register.) Everybody cheers the President's air-mail move; it was a big thing to do. His next popular move would be to say to his legal department,

"Who said there was fraud, 'We said there was fraud, there was fraud, we'll get busy and try somebody, and if guilty, convict 'em, that's all today, gentlemen.' Most criticism of the Army is going to be very unjust. He is taught to fight in the air, when he fails at that then criticize him; he didn't hire out as a postman, in fact in modern warfare they don't correspond with each other. Our air-mail pilots are the best in the world. That's why we have two departments in Washington, one for war, and one for mail, both very efficient, but not at each other's jobs."

P. S.—Eddie Rickenbacker did mighty well for us in the last war, and he had never delivered a letter in his life.

Yours, WILL.

Kidnaping Story Told By Girls To Escape Punishment

Afraid to go home after dark, two little girls attempted to escape parental blame Saturday night by fastening their hands with a rope and telling a story that they had been kidnapped.

The girls left the high school after playing until dark, and walked west on First street. Coming to the home of a Japanese family near Sullivan street, they tied themselves up with a skipping rope, then knocked at the door and told a story of being kidnapped. Sheriff's officers were called to get the girls and took them home.

An investigation by city police revealed the hoax.

Denies Charges

In response to a request for the disposition of the case, Mellon said he received from Cummings "an evasive response, saying that the department of justice had completed its examination of my 1931 income tax and neither making a criticism nor dismissing the charges, but suggesting a fishing expedition into years as to which no charges had been made by anyone."

MELLON RAPS CONVICTS FAIL TAX CHARGES IN ATTEMPT TO AS "POLITICS" BREAK PRISON

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(UP)

—Andrew W. Mellon today charged Attorney General Homer S. Cummings with "politics of the crudest sort" in connection with Cummings' announcement that grand jury action on income tax charges would be sought against the former secretary of the treasury.

Mellon's statement was issued after Cummings had announced such action was being taken against the Pittsburgh millionaire, James J. Walker, former New York mayor, Thomas S. Lamont, partner in J. P. Morgan & Co., and Thomas L. Siddle, prominent Cleveland attorney.

Cummings described the four actions as part of an intensive campaign to collect back unpaid or evaded back taxes. The four cases have been turned over to the local U. S. district attorneys for grand jury presentation, he said. Other cases will follow.

The timing of the drastic action just before the time for filing and payment of 1933 income taxes March 15 was expected to increase such filings and payments substantially.

Mellon "In Dark"

Mellon pointed out that he had paid $20,000,000 in income taxes in the past 20 years and declared that "I am as much in the dark as anyone as to any possible grounds for the action."

He declared that three department of justice agents had made a thorough examination of his books in connection with this 1931 income tax and had advised him of no evidence of irregularity. Cummings did not state what year's taxes were in question nor give other details.

"In all my years of experience in the administration of the tax laws," said Mellon, "I have never known of a single instance in which such unfair and arbitrary action has been taken."

Mellon said that after charges had been made in congress by Rep. Louis McFadden, R., Pa., that he had evaded part of his 1931 tax, three agents were sent to examine his books.

Denies Charges

In response to a request for the disposition of the case, Mellon said he received from Cummings "an evasive response, saying that the department of justice had completed its examination of my 1931 income tax and neither making a criticism nor dismissing the charges, but suggesting a fishing expedition into years as to which no charges had been made by anyone."

victs. They fought in close quarters. Peterson was felled by a pistol butt but was quickly on his feet and back in the fray. He seized a pick handle, knocked one prisoner senseless and dragged him to the office of the captain of the guard. Meantime Hogeboom and Posthumus had subdued the other two.

One of the prisoners in the electric shop freed himself during the battle and unlocked Miller's bonds. Miller in turn cut the bonds of the others who were returned to their cells.

Courage of the guards and a bad break for the convicts—the fact that the fog lifted just after the firing began, flooding the prison with sunlight—were credited by Holohan with defeating the break.

"Everything is quiet now," the warden said. "There isn't anything to worry about. No one has, or will, escape. The three who tried were locked up in the dungeon. We are starting an investigation immediately and will search the entire prison on the possibility that we may find other weapons or clues to the plans of the would-be escapees."

Cummings said the Aluminum company of America was a Mellon-owned concern which was a 100 per cent "monopoly in the producing field."

"What this has to do with my income taxes is not apparent," said he, "but in any event I and all the members of my family own less than a majority of the stock of this company."

He said Cummings should know the concern was not violating any anti-trust law since a case in which this point had been raised had recently been decided in favor of the aluminum company. Cummings' law firm represented the plaintiff in the case, Mellon said.

"For many months now a campaign of character wrecking and abuse has been conducted against me in the press and over the radio," he said, "I am glad the issue is joined at last and am quite content to leave the outcome to the courts and to the good sense and fairness of the American people."

AGREE TO OIL WELL SURVEY: CONTINUE CASE

Hearing in the state's case against the Milroy Oil company in which the state is alleging that the oil company slant drilled a well in the Huntington Beach field in an effort to tap the oil pool under the tidelands, was postponed today until April 16.

Postponement of the case was made through a stipulation filed by Webb Shade, attorney for the state department of finance in which the oil company agreed that the court might order a survey of Milroy Well No. 1 and that the oil company would submit the survey to the state.

The City of Huntington Beach filed notice of a motion for dismissal of the suit, to be argued today, which also was continued.

The hearing scheduled for today was on the state's application for a restraining order preventing continuation of drilling of Milroy Well No. 1 which it is alleged was started after November 15, the date set in an edict by Rolland Vandegrift when all drilling of oil wells on property adjoining the state tidelands must cease. Attorneys for the oil company and the state also were scheduled to argue on a proposed order to show cause why the state should not be permitted to make a survey of the well to ascertain whether or not the hole had been "whippedstocked" in an effort to tap the oil pool under the tidelands.

PUBLIC EVENT ORDER POLICE DEDICATES NEW TO ENFORCE LEGION HOME LIQUOR LAWS

Thousands of Santa Anans inspected the new home of the Santa Ana post, American Legion, Saturday night following the ceremony which marked the sealing of the cornerstone of the building by Mayor Paul Witmer. Following the ceremony and exhibitions by the post's drum and bugle corps and drill team of the post, auxiliary, guests of the post danced to music provided by the orchestra.

Following a brief introductory address by Charles Swanner, post commander, Mayor Witmer placed into a recess in the cornerstone, histories of the Santa Ana post, its auxiliary and other organizations that will have their headquarters in the new building.

He also placed in the recess the names of the present members of the city of the county board of supervisors along with copies of the membership rolls of the Legion post and auxiliary and a copy of the Santa Ana Register for last Friday.

Members of the post and auxiliary, led by the drum and bugle corps, under leadership of Dr. F. K. Baker, and the Auxiliary drill team led by Gladys B. Young, paraded from East Fourth street to the Veterans' hall before the ceremony started.

Following sealing of the cornerstone by Mayor Witmer, Commander Swanner introduced Judge E. J. Marks, of the fourth district appellate court, who delivered the address of the evening.

Judge Marks said that the dedication of the Legion hall is not a public ceremony, but is a rite performed in the hearts of every loyal member of the organization, and in the hearts of every mother, father, brother and sister of those men who fought for the nation during the World war.

He declared that membership in the American Legion can be attained only through faithful service to the nation, and members of the Legion stand out because they do belong to the organization and have served.

Since being members out of the service of the country, Legion members have continued to serve their various states and communities.

Judge Marks recalled the night of March 10, 1933, when an earthquake shook the city. Dedicated services of Veterans hall Saturday night marked the anniversary of that night when the hall was so badly damaged that it could no longer be used.

Tribute To Recovery
He said that on that night the Legion responded to the community's need and had it not been for their prompt and faithful service the death toll here might have been greater than it was. He said "One year ago when I saw the devastation here in the path of the quake I did not believe that this city could, in one year, return to normal. This city's recovery shows that no matter what blow or shock the American people receive they will rise supreme. As we have arisen in every other emergency we will arise from the depression a greater and finer nation."

Referring to the Legion as a service organization Marks sounded a warning that some day, probably not in Orange county but in other horticultural and agricultural areas, Legionnaires would receive a call more urgent than any received in the past. This call he said would be made necessary because there are some men and women who, raised under the American flag, are devoting themselves to the overthrow of the flag, country and the church.

Strike Reference
He said that the Legion believes in free speech and open argument but it does object to any organization that attempts to carry out its views in the destruction of property and human life. Organizers of the agricultural strikes in the San Joaquin valley have been declared, are renewing their activities in the agricultural areas and are attempting to overthrow society. Those organizers he said do not care what becomes of the itinerant workers organized to strike but want to destroy all who do not believe as they do.

The Legion will be called upon he said to preserve law and order and he urged that when the call comes all members of the organization remember that every person has the right to free speech but that when they start the destruction of life and property then the Legion must act but confine its actions within the law.

Swanner, after the address by Judge Marks thanked the citizens of the city and county for their co-operation in reconstruction of the building and invited inspection of the place.

Through a misunderstanding the general public, according to Commander Swanner today, believed that there was going to be a dance after the ceremony. The orchestra, engaged until 9 p. m. had another engagement and was forced to leave. Rather than disappoint the guests however, the Legion post provided other music and continued the dance. Swanner said that the regular weekly dances would be started next Friday night.

TEACHINGS OF TRUST GOD TO JESUS' TOPIC END. MINISTER IN VILLA PARK URGES IN TALK

ORANGE, March 12.—Speaking Sunday on "The Teachings of Jesus," Wesley P. Ford, pastor of the Villa Park Community church, declared that Jesus of Nazareth truly was the pioneer of life.

In the development of his theme the pastor said, in part: "Because there is such a large territory to be covered, we get away from the teachings of Jesus, and I like occasionally to come back to them."

After he talked with the woman of Samaria, she called him a great prophet. Nicodemus said, 'Behold, a Teacher,' Peter said, 'Behold, you have killed the prince of life.'

Today you hear him called an old-fashioned teacher. So also, there are those who see in him what there is in himself.

"Some one has described Jesus as a pioneer, a trail blazer, who went out across new ways, building new highways, showing the light of faith. We look to the Galilean, a great pioneer. Jesus of Nazareth was not merely a horizontal, but also a vertical pioneer, opening up a higher way to the heart of God. He established men in the household of God. He led men into a new quality of life, setting them on a paved highway in God's life, giving them faith in the eternity of God and making it possible for them to resist the wiles of the world and the devil. Every place he found life, he found abundance and gave it to men so that they might enjoy what he had discovered."

"Of what good would it have been for Columbus to make his discovery unless men had come to know what he had discovered? Of what value would Jesus' discoveries have been if men had not been willing to follow his trails? It seems sometimes they are paved with gold and silver."

"How do we know that Jesus is a great teacher? How do we know he is an explorer? How did they know that Columbus and others had made discoveries? Because they brought samples of the things they had found and they had never seen things like that. How do I know Jesus found God? Because he brought back new life. His teachings made men honest, pure in heart, with a single purpose, not two faced, unselfish, humble. Jesus of Nazareth brought back to earth a sample of the things he had found. He gained the greatest life the world had ever beheld. He opened the way for all mankind everywhere. I wonder is His is a way we should follow? We see in Him life and character. Let us forsake all and follow Him."

ORANGE, March 12.—There is no affliction or trial which the people of God are called to pass through that God does not suffer with them. No matter what the experience may be, God is there to pass through it with those who are serving Him. It was declared by C. W. E. Bond, of Santa Ana, who spoke at the local Seventh Day Adventist church on the corner of Palm and Cleveland streets at the regular Sabbath services Saturday.

Taking his text from the prophecy of Isaiah, chapter 63 and the ninth verse, "In all their affliction he was afflicted, and the angel of his presence saved them; in his life and in his pity he redeemed them; and he bare them, and carried them all the days of old," the speaker said, "This glorious record of divine intervention reveals the fact that the children of Israel had a blessed God. This same loving God is the God of the Christian today."

Emphasizing the thought that in all their affliction He was afflicted, the speaker continued: "In Isaiah 48:2, we read, 'When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee; when thou walkest through the fire, thou shalt not be burned; neither shall the flame kindle upon thee.' This wonderful promise was most graciously fulfilled in the experience of the three Hebrew children in the fiery furnace. Even the heathen king beheld the power of the son of God in the midst of the fire. In the same manner the Saviour takes us through the furnace of affliction. No matter how great the trial or how severe the persecution, let us feel His presence near us and trust Him to the end."

PARK HORSESHOE GROUNDS AND CLUBHOUSE DEDICATED; MAYOR CITES WORK FIGURES

ORANGE, March 12.—Reveling that more than $42,000 had been paid for labor at the city park through the RFC and CWA since work was started on the project April 13, 1932, Mayor Clyde Watson gave a comprehensive survey of what has been accomplished in the 11 months intervening since that time at the dedication of the recently completed horseshoe grounds and clubhouse Saturday afternoon at the Santiago creek.

Mayor Watson brought to the attention of approximately 700 present at the ceremonies the importance of the distribution of this sum among workers of the community, all of whom were in need of employment and who otherwise would have found themselves in difficult circumstances.

When work was begun on the project last year through RFC funds, $30,000 was expended in labor by the city official brought out. Since the CWA program was instituted November 1, 1932, $12,345 has been expended for labor and $222 for material at the park and on the sewer on LaVeta leading to it. While the RFC was operative, from 166 to 96 men were employed and under the CWA, from 166 to 96 men have been employed. Mayor Watson pointed out that the money would not have been available to the community unless projects which met the approval of the government had been gotten under way and said that if no park existed as the result of the two labor programs, the community still would have benefitted greatly from the money distributed through the RFC and the CWA.

Besides the park project, $3554 was spent for labor with 186 men employed in laying a sewer on Batavia street the first of the year, Watson brought out in his talk.

Watson was introduced by the president of the Horseshoe club, M. E. White, who also introduced members of the park commission of the city council, A. H. Helm, chairman, and Ben Dierker, L. E. Ralls, vice president of the club, Henry Diesel, the treasurer and Frank Brown, secretary. Brown, it was stated had done a great deal of work on the horseshoe and roque grounds without compensation.

The clubhouse is nearly finished and it was inspected by the many visitors present. A wide porch on the south commands a view of what will be the picnic grounds in a few weeks time. The floor of the room is cement and the walls are to be in a two-toned Tiffany finish. A wide open fireplace is at one end of the room and casement windows on each side of the long room allow a sweep of sea breeze through the structure.

The clubhouse ceiling is rafted and when finished will have a gray glaze finish. The outside is of white stucco and the porch will be finished in green glaze while the roof is of red tile. ORANGE, March 12.—Reveling that more than $42,000 had been paid for labor at the city park through the RFC and CWA since work was started on the project April 13, 1932, Mayor Clyde Watson gave a comprehensive survey of what has been accomplished in the 11 months intervening since that time at the dedication of the recently completed horseshoe grounds and clubhouse Saturday afternoon at the Santiago creek.

Mayor Watson brought to the attention of approximately 700 present at the ceremonies the importance of the distribution of this sum among workers of the community, all of whom were in need of employment and who otherwise would have found themselves in difficult circumstances.

When work was begun on the project last year through RFC funds, $30,000 was expended in labor by the city official brought out. Since the CWA program was instituted November 1, 1932, $12,345 has been expended for labor and $222 for material at the park and on the sewer on LaVeta leading to it. While the RFC was operative, from 166 to 96 men were employed and under the CWA, from 166 to 96 men have been employed. Mayor Watson pointed out that the money would not have been available to the community unless projects which met the approval of the government had been gotten under way and said that if no park existed as the result of the two labor programs, the community still would have benefitted greatly from the money distributed through the RFC and the CWA.

Besides the park project, $3554 was spent for labor with 186 men employed in laying a sewer on Batavia street the first of the year, Watson brought out in his talk.

Watson was introduced by the president of the Horseshoe club, M. E. White, who also introduced members of the park commission of the city council, A. H. Helm, chairman, and Ben Dierker, L. E. Ralls, vice president of the club, Henry Diesel, the treasurer and Frank Brown, secretary. Brown, it was stated had done a great deal of work on the horseshoe and roque grounds without compensation.

The clubhouse is nearly finished and it was inspected by the many visitors present. A wide porch on the south commands a view of what will be the picnic grounds in a few weeks time. The floor of the room is cement and the walls are to be in a two-toned Tiffany finish. A wide open fireplace is at one end of the room and casement windows on each side of the long room allow a sweep of sea breeze through the structure.

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

— News Behind The News —

WASHINGTON

CONTROL
Mr. Roosevelt has revised his strategy for handling Congress. The change is working out badly. He started out by feeding the legislative lions one piece of meat at a time. He made them jump through the hoop before they received another. In that way he kept them under control. That method led to too much talk about trying to make himself a dictator. He eased up. Now he is throwing meat at them—directly and indirectly—so fast that they are fighting all over the cage. Half of them are trying to bite his leg.

AUDACITY
A contributing factor is the weakness of the house leadership. His assistants over there are NOT working together. They tumbled the bonus situation, also the revision of the economy bill.

It takes first class cagemen, like Garner, Longworth and Joe Nathan, to run the house. The present leaders are all good men, but they do not use the whip and pistol enough.

Nobody expects the senate to be subject to leadership. It has a superiority complex. But Mr. Roosevelt himself is probably more to blame than anyone else. He has had the audacity to try to get through a tax bill, a tariff bill and a stock market bill in a campaign year. No president ever tried that before.

PROBABILITIES
The peculiar part of it is he will probably get away with it. The cloakroom situation of his program may be thumbed as follows:

TARIFF
Bargaining power will be given him under heavy restrictions he did not want; but only after a struggle. The senate will reserve the right to turn down the bargains he makes.

STOCK MARKET
The bill submitted by the young Anthony advocates will be thoroughly rewritten, modified and passed. Wall Street will not be satisfied, but partially appeased.

FARM AID
The Bankhead cotton curtailment bill can be passed only if Mr. Roosevelt put his foot down and insists. He will. The administrative amendments to the AAA will be sanctioned, because few in congress will realize what they mean. Commodity market regulation will go through as a tail to the stock exchange kite.

COMMUNICATIONS
It is an innocuous bill merely consolidating existing regulatory bodies and will probably be passed, although no one will cry if it is not.

AIRMAIL CONTRACTS
The Roosevelt competitive bidding idea will be adopted with some slight modifications.

VETS CUT AND PAY CUTS
A compromise will be worked out and enacted.

SUGAR
A satisfactory compromise is in prospect, with the beet people getting about half what they are asking for.

CASUALTIES
Dead and dying items include: St. Lawrence Treaty—The Roosevelt power was not strong enough to overcome local influence on senators in a campaign year.

Bonus—The current argument is just political by-play, not even seriously intended.

Pure Foods—Dr. Tugwell got disgusted and went to Porto Rico.

War Debts—Too much dynamite even for audacious Mr. Roosevelt. He probably will not recommend anything.

Tax-exempt Securities—Will not be seriously considered until next session.

RELIEF
It is absurd to talk about adjourning congress May 15 in the face of this program. If Mr. Roosevelt wants to get rid of congress that soon, he will have to saw off part of the program.

His legislative henchmen have a sneaking suspicion that after he gets the tariff and stock market bills through, he may tell the boys to let the rest go. He has gone too far for that.

The prospects are that the congress will stay here and fight out the issues, if it takes half the summer, and it might.

FIT
Business will be glad to hear that NRA officials have considered army officers as government representatives on code authorities. This fits in with the move to get college professors also.

The administration is straining to find unbiased men to represent it in place of the business men who now have dual loyalty.

The army officers and college professors will undoubtedly fit in with the business representatives like a glove—three sizes too small.

NOTES
You can take a grain of salt with Ambassador Bullitt's public statement from Moscow that he does not expect war between Russia and Japan this spring. Diplomats do not always say publicly what they say privately.

Mr. Hoover's pals say he was quite upset about the cancellation of airmail contracts. Aviation development was one of his pets.

to hear Morgenthau in secret. But he ordered the doors open, saying he was going to approve the idea. His reason is that it cannot become law for at least three to five years and will apply only to new issues, so it will really help the present financing.

Comptroller McCarl has held up on his desk for six weeks the idea of lending money for sale of electrical appliances under the TVA. Advocates of the plan are trying to smoke him out.

Administration congressmen are bragging about putting over that amendment restricting war contractors to 10 per cent profit. It was really thought up by one newsman and actually written by another. The congressmen did nothing but adopt it. (Copyright, 1934, by Paul Mallon)

NEW YORK

STOCK EXCHANGE
Civil war clouds are growing darker on the Stock Exchange horizon. Nominations of officers and governing committee members are due this month and may be used by rebels to push through an insurgent slate against the regular Whitney ticket.

Present authorities show no signs of yielding the reins of their own free will. Exchange members have received a circular from the nominating committee which certainly avoids the direct suggestion that current officers and committee members be renominated but names the men whose terms are about to expire and subtly infers that they are desirable candidates. It's a long time since anyone bucked the nominating committee but it's likely to happen if the rebels can get together and find leaders willing to take a chance.

The head of one of the largest wire houses is mentioned as being on Wall Street as Whitney's probable opponent but hasn't yet indicated willingness to accept the call.

OUSTER

A significant sign of the times is the altered attitude of some of the oldest and most conservative houses. A number of them privately admit that a shift of managing personnel would be all to the good. They figure it chiefly as a matter of public relations on the ground that Whitney and his associates are in so wrong with congress and the public that the Exchange has no chance of getting anywhere except under new management. The houses in question will carry plenty of weight when it comes to a showdown.

The same conservatives add the important point that the present officers and directors must be ousted after a fight—not merely give place peacefully to their own chosen successors—in order to convince the public that the Exchange's new deal is sincere. This gives the key to some inside strategy that may soon develop openly.

CANADA

Local opponents of the Securities Act are planning to spring Canada as the ace in the hole in pressing their demands for revision.

It works this way! The province of Ontario will soon be in the market for $40,000,000 of new financing. Ontario has a Grade A credit rating and normally the issue would be floated here. A number of leading New York bankers would be glad to handle it.

But it's more than possible that Ontario will object to answering all the initiate questions required by the Federal Trade Commission as a condition of registration. In that case London is certain to get the offering.

The argument runs that London financing would mean a closer Canadian tie with England at the very moment when we are trying to promote our Canadian trade. The boys think they have a Q. E. D.

COPPER

The copper folks have hauled up the white flag on their code and tossed the question of fair competitive practices squarely into the government's lap. There are dark hints in inside copper circles of requesting a direct subsidy to save the industry.

Domestic copper producers have had the grief of watching foreign markets enjoy the thrills of a buying wave while their own have remained at a standstill because of high costs and surplus stocks.

Purchase of American-mined silver by the government has been no help—quite the reverse. In order to get the desirable by-product it has been necessary to bring a lot more unwanted copper above ground. Even the European and Far Eastern demand for copper for armament purposes has been pretty much of a washout in the matter of using up domestic stocks.

OIL

The oil industry continues to see boom times ahead. Consumption is still on the up-grade and prices appear headed for the moon unless the Consumers' Board or some other government agency objects too strenuously. Insiders predict there will be very little oil in storage by the time summer is over.

Since 1930 the nation's oil supply has been reduced by a billion barrels net. That much more has been used than discovered.

The situation has reached a point where discovery expeditions are seriously at work in various parts of the country trying to unearth new fields. So far their finds have been unimportant.

HURDLES

There's plenty of sub-surface unrest among New York's German-Americans. They fought O'Brien in the mayoralty election because he banned a Nazi mass meeting. Now they find that La Guardia is no improvement from their angle and some of their leaders are

TWO BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARIES ARE OBSERVED

FULLERTON, March 12.—A beautiful birthday party was given Saturday when Mrs. L. A. Hampton and Mrs. A. A. Arnold, of Fullerton, entertained for their daughters, Miss Betty Hampton, celebrating her 30th anniversary, and Adrienne, celebrating her first anniversary, at the Placencia Round Table club rooms.

Little Adrienne was dressed in shell pink embroidered batiste and Miss Hampton wore a white starched lace dress with corsage of gardenias.

Hampton, grandmother of Miss Hampton, dressed in heliotrope blue crepe, and with a corsage of gardenias, and Mrs. Rose King, grand aunt of Adrienne, wearing black chiffon, and with a corsage of white gardenias, presided at the tea table.

The tea table, covered with a lace cloth, and decorated in Easter motifs, little rabbits, candles, orchid and gold Easter eggs, individual birthday cakes, and balloons, was especially attractive, and the hostesses served sandwiches, tea, tarts and cake.

PROGRESS

The Farley wing of the local Democracy is quietly making progress at rolling up Tammany boss Curry's flanks. His last city ally outside of Manhattan—Boss Theofel of Queens—has just been given the bum's rush in favor of a Farley nominee.

Tammany still cherishes fond hopes of a comeback against Farley—but not with Napoleon Curry in the saddle.

The meeting honored Mrs. Jessie Galbraith Morris, of Bakersfield, grand matron, and her escort, and was preceded by a dinner, where 300 guests were seated. ## MISSION WORK OUTLINED FOR CHURCH GROUP

FULLERTON, March 12.—"To build Christian conscience into all needs of America, and of the world, that is Christ's work for Christians to do," Dr. Royal J. Dye, missionary of the Christian church in Africa, said Sunday in an interesting sermon at the Fullerton Christian church, where he was a guest speaker.

After stating that "there are fields enough, yes, and there are Christians enough to care for the jobs in those fields, and each Christian has just as much of a commission to work in those home fields as missionaries have to work in foreign fields," the speaker brought story after story relating the needs of Christianizing influences in American fields.

Coke factories in Pennsylvania, where home missionaries have established Sunday schools and missions; Negro schools in Texas; work in Indian territories; Japanese schools in Los Angeles, all were described in graphic manner by the speaker who declared the problems of the political, the social, the economic world can be solved only by the Christianizing influence of the people who believe in Christ. His final story was of a warlike of Africa who through the influence of the gospel, became a mighty worker for the cause of right.

The speaker, who talked at the Brea Christian church earlier in the day, was introduced by the Rev. George Tinsley, pastor of the Fullerton church.

"An Olympic champion speed skater needs healthy nerves—but a man can't handle a tough office job without healthy nerves, either. ## Costa Mesa Given Praise For Work Of Beautification

COSTA MESA, Mar. 12.—A communication from the office of the State Division of Highways to the Costa Mesa Chamber of Commerce yesterday, carried information that the state is co-operating with the chamber in negotiating the abandoned tracks through the community. The community was commended for the work of beautification that is being done.

Plans are being worked out for further beautification by the extension of parks in the right-of-way by the local chamber, co-operating with the Orange County coast association. It is planned to establish a central auto parking space in the right-of-way through the business section of the town from Eighteenth street to Broadway. It is pointed out by those working on the plans that business will be able to occupy both sides of Newport boulevard in this sector if the parking space can be so arranged.

CANDIDATES FOR SCHOOL BOARDS FILE PETITIONS

NEWPORT BEACH, March 12.—Conrad Shook announced today that he will be a candidate to succeed himself as a director of the local grammar school board. There is but one to elect at this time and so far he is the only candidate who has been named.

Two members are to be elected on the high school board. Judge D. J. Dodge and Mrs. Albert Sparkes, whose terms expire, have announced their intention of running for the positions again. No other names have been mentioned for the positions.

Fred Opp and George Healey, members of the Costa Mesa board, rather finish their terms this spring. Opp stated that he did not care to seek re-election but Healey stated yesterday that he will try for the job again. Harry Aldrich has filed as candidate for a place on the board.

The building program for both the Costa Mesa and Newport Beach intermediate schools are rather uncertain yet. The Newport Beach trustees claim that at present they can hope for but a possible $110,000 for rehabilitation. The trustees claim they have lost their chances for a government grant because of delays brought on by opposition to the building program planned by them. Costa Mesa trustees have completed arrangements for application for the government grant, and have decided to postpone their building plans until the grant is forthcoming. They will continue the school with what equipment they have plus a new garage and manual training room which are under construction from salvaged material from the old buildings, it was stated.

Lagunans In Murder Play On March 14

LAGUNA BEACH, March 12.—Every one of the six suspects in "Crumbling Walls, the mystery play to be produced at the Community club Wednesday night by the drama section, is supplied by the author with a genuine motive for committing the murder around which the plot is written.

The scene is laid in an old house, which lends itself well to the action of such a story. It is the ancient stronghold of the Verewood family and there are legends that help to make thrills as the plot unfolds, or entangles, as the case might be.

According to Director John B. Hughes the play has been given in England but will have its American premiere in Laguna Beach. The play is to be repeated Saturday night of this week and again on March 24. Following is the cast: Pauline Marth, a maid, Lorraine Volmer; Lawrence Wells, a butler, Roger Young; Sir John Verewood, head of the house of Verewood, John B. Hughes; Barrington Verewood, his brother, L. S. Brady; Lady Agatha Temperly, their aunt, Winifred St. Clair; Christopher Manners, a friend of Sir John's, Raymond Grimes; Marion Caruthers, St. John's fiancée, Julie Bingham; Inspector Friek of Scotland Yard, John Volmer; Captain Fielding of Scotland Yard, Haring Griggs.

COUNTY ROAD PATROL WILL RECEIVE CUP

SACRAMENTO, March 12.—F. Raymond Cato, chief of the California highway patrol, has named 21 county squads on the Patrol Honor Roll, for having reduced in the number of motor vehicle fatalities in 1933 on the rural roads of their respective counties. Orange county, which in the past has been a county with a large annual death total, tops the list this year with a reduction of 26 deaths in 1933 as compared with 1932. In all, the 21 counties have shown a reduction of 106 deaths on their rural roads.

Orange county will be recommended by Chief Cato to the State Chamber of Commerce for the loving cup trophy which that organization awards annually to the county squad of the patrol which shows the maximum reduction in the number of deaths and the cup will be presented on March 16 in Los Angeles. Chief Cato will issue merit citations to Capt. H. C. McEhan, in charge of the Orange county squad and the patrol captains of each of the other 20 counties.

During the last three years the Chamber of Commerce Loving Cup was held by the Riverside county squad in 1931, the Tulare county squad in 1932, and the Santa Clara county squad in 1933.

Pretended Death Attempt Charged In Divorce Suit

Charging that her husband, Charles A. Davis, Orange watch repairer, on January 28, last, told her that he had taken bichloride of mercury tablets and attempted to force her to swallow some of the pellets, Mrs. Flora C. Davis has filed suit for divorce in superior court.

In her complaint she alleged that when she refused to take the bichloride tablets her husband pretended to have convulsions. She also charged that her husband had made several threats to end his life and on one occasion had threatened to kill himself with a pistol. Mrs. Davis also alleged that her husband frequently pinched and struck her and often stayed out late at night. They were married January 22, 1934, in Riverside and separated January 30, last.

James E. Booth is seeking a divorce from Mrs. Winnie Booth charging her with desertion. The complaint alleges that the Booths were married January 1, 1910, in Bakersfield, Calif., and separated December 27, 1932. Desertion was the allegation made in the divorce complaint filed in superior court by John M. Starton against his wife, Mrs. Maggie A. Starton, whom he married June 28, 1929, in South Haven, Kansas. He alleges that his wife left him July 28, 1930.

New Cash, Carry Wholesale House Opening In S. A.

A new and modern wholesale cash and carry branch of the Western States Grocery company is opening this week at 414 East Fourth street. This is the forty-second branch of the company to be opened in this trading area, according to L. L. Wood, district manager for this territory, who was in the city this week to see after the opening. A. E. Seger, supervisor for this district, has been in the city all week, assisting Adin Bennett, the local manager, in the installation of the stock.

Bennett has been with the Western States Grocery company for several years and comes to this territory highly recommended by his company.

Wood was high in his praise of the prospects of Santa Ana territory and speaks of it as an opening that they have been looking forward to for several months. He believes that from all appearances and reports, Santa Ana has suffered less and is recovering faster from the recent depression than probably any city in the state of California.

The Western States Grocery company operates branches in many of the states west of the Mississippi, Canada and Hawaii, and is said to be the largest concern selling foods at wholesale in the west. They feature especially such nationally advertised canned goods as Libby's, Del Monte and Stokely brands and other nationally known grocery items.

The ROMANTIC RUNAWAY

by KATHARINE HAVILAND-TAYLOR

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Pablito, a handsome 17-year-old youth, works at the palatial Florida home of millionaire Jim Field. The son of a titled Englishman and a servant girl, Pablito knows nothing of his parents. When 8 years old he ran away from Angola, the heartless old crone in whose care he was left. Since then he has lived with Norris Noyes, a mysterious individual who has seen better days. Field's estranged wife and their daughter, Estelle, arrive at the Florida home. Pablito sees Estelle and almost at once falls in love with her. He hears Field tell his daughter he is planning a masquerade party in her honor.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VI
From outside Noyes heard the sound of a bulky motor and then Pablito speaking of seaweed and the best course back. Evidently Pablito knew Jeffries; evidently Jeffries was at Field's camp.

The job of repairing the engine took some time. To Noyes it seemed an hour. Pablito reckoned it as a half hour when Jeffries held out to him a silver dollar. The youth fished in his pocket. "I get 50 cents an hour at Mr. Field's camp," he said. "I've only worked for you half an hour."

"Nonsense," Jeffries answered. "I prefer to be paid for what I do. Thank you just the same." Pablito gave a turn to the engine and it hummed. "She'll run now," he said pointedly.

Jeffries closed it off almost violently. "Your attitude is somewhat different here from at the camp," he commented acidly.

"I am not arranging Mr. Field's swings now," Pablito answered. The tall, hard-faced young woman who sat the end of the boat was staring fixedly at Pablito. His manner, a combination of only slightly veiled contempt and assurance, as well as his good looks, interested her. He had rather put Jeff down and that pleased her too. Marcia Treadway had been hearing a number of things that afternoon that had been bitter to listen to.

Years before she had laughed rather sneeringly at "young emotion." Then, in her middle thirties, she had succumbed to it. Now, realizing that she had been a fool (and looking at the man in the end of the boat as she realized this), she knew she must learn to laugh all over again at "young emotion."

It would not do. Marcia, in spite of all her money, felt that she had had "rather a raw deal."

"And now shall we start home, Jeff?" she asked. She added, drawing, "I am rather bored with you, I'm afraid."

Pablito watched them off. He had seen the couple flaunting their affair at the camp and noticed the indifference of Therese Jeffries, who was Jeffries' wife—an indifference Pablito felt was caused by pride.

Noyes was still cowering in the shadow when Pablito, entered the shack. "Have they gone?" he whispered.

"Yes." "He knew me—" Pablito turned abruptly from the stove where he had been trying to rescue the bacon. "That fellow—knew me," Noyes went on. "Is he at the camp?"

"Yes." "He could have me sent to prison—or worse—if he told of having seen me."

Pablito set the coffee pot on the table. "I'll find out whether he tells—" he said.

"How?" "The servants will gabble. They think I live alone. If they overhear anything that makes them think I don't I'll know about it."

"He might go to the police." "I'll go down to Bantam's to find out about that. They'll be in there if it's not notified."

"How will you do it without letting Bantam know I'm here?"

"I'll manage. You know how Bantam talks."

"Yes, but—" "You clear out this evening."

Pablito interrupted. "Then if anyone comes here they'll find the place deserted. Go over to the swamp and I'll meet you as soon as I can—just as soon as I know things are all right."

Noyes nodded. A little later Pablito said anxiously, "You're not eating?" He had not eaten much himself.

"I guess I'm not hungry," Noyes answered.

Jeffries did speak of seeing Noyes. He lounged into his wife's boudoir and dropped by a window looking out at the sea. "Had an odd experience this afternoon," he began without further introduction.

"You were fishy with Marcia Treadway?" she asked in a chilly tone.

"Yes—hailed into it."

"Poor persecuted lamb!" Therese yawned and shifted her position. The boredom she had tried to express in a synthetic yawn was not in her eyes; she watched him narrowly.

"The experience?" she prompted at length and as casually as she could.

"Well," he began, "we ran toward Key West after we'd fished and—"

A maid appeared and Therese looked up. She said quickly, "It's only Alice. Go on."

Alice disappeared into the adjoining room to assemble her mistresses' evening chrysalis.

Therese heard her husband speaking of fishing and engine trouble and a small island and then of someone he called "Norris Noyes." "And I swear I saw him," he ended with some excitement.

"What of it?" she questioned with a languor that was not assumed.

"My Lord, don't you remember that case?"

"No."

"The Noyes-Martell case?"

"No."

"But you knew Josie Martell?"

"An actress, wasn't she?"

"Yes. Well, did you or did you not know that she was murdered?"

"Oh, I knew that—or I think I did. Alice—"

Therese called, turning her face toward the open doorway. "I'll have the green taffeta tonight."

"Well, it was Noyes who murdered her; that's all. It was 26 years ago and the police are still looking for him. And that boy you think is so good-looking—Pablito, isn't he?—lives with Noyes."

"I fail to see why that fact should heighten one's blood pressure."

"You don't see? Look here—if I don't report this it makes me a criminal for aiding Noyes in his evasion."

"You are a criminal," Therese stated evenly, "but you have been made so by indulging your own inclinations and not from shielding anyone else."

He spoke then quickly and heatedly and as he spoke she struggled up from her half-prostrate position. "I wouldn't mind your penchant for other women so much," she broke in, "if you didn't always come back in such a bad mood. I get very bored by that, Ted—"

"My God!"

"If you don't know what to do about this matter go to Field. He'll advise you. He knows everything, the boy!"

The only gentleman within 10 miles of this place is that Pablito boy."

"I thank you, my dear. You are always charming."

"Is he the son of this Noyes?"

"I suppose so."

"Illegitimate?"

"Must be. His wife never divorced him. She was a Callender."

"Really? The Charleston Callenders?"

"Yes."

"Odd: I do remember the affair now. Ted will you get out? Since my I hardly see—"

"Do you always have to be so cross, Therese?"

He left her and she heard the slam of the door opening to his room. Alice, with the green taffeta gown over her arm, found her mistress relaxed.

Between her brows, Alice was something to tell the servants at dinner that night, she reflected, as she laid out the fragile garments.

She had always known that Pablito was "half a gentleman" anyway and now she could prove it."

3 DISTRICTS FAR AHEAD IN
U. S. LAND LOANS

BERKELEY, March 12.—A check of the loans made by the Berkeley federal land bank during the first two months of the year shows that the San Joaquin valley leads all California and the three other states in the farm credit administration's eleventh district in the number and amounts of loans.

San Joaquin county, with $1,122,700 representing the aggregate of 231 loans closed in February, tops the record for the state; in January that county received $677,500 on 166 loans, or a two-month total of $1,800,200.

Tulare county was not far behind San Joaquin with $1,689,900 representing 560 loans closed during January and February. Four hundred and ninety loans brought $1,292,700 into Fresno county in the same period. Merced was represented by $932,600 on 226 loans. Madera by $376,500 on 103 loans.

North of San Joaquin, Sacramento county accounted for 120 loans over the two months reviewed aggregating $1,002,600.

CONTRAST IN ORANGE COUNTY

Orange county agriculturists have received a total of $589,700 since last summer in federal land bank and land bank commissioner loans, according to figures obtained today from Miss Justine Whitney, county recorder. Some of these came through the Los Angeles office.

Thirty-three of 133 applications approved and which have been paid out in cash by the Orange County National Farm Loan association aggregate $167,700 in federal land bank loans and $79,500 in land bank commissioner loans, making a total of $247,200 paid out so far in Orange county by the association. There are 19 other loans for which the cash is now at title companies, but which has not been paid out yet. These loans amount to $193,400, according to C. A. Palmer, secretary.

This money started flowing into

Orange county only after a group of Orange county agriculturists and others, aided by The Register, inaugurated a campaign to secure quicker action from the bank in granting loans in Orange county. Land bank officials had claimed that owing to water conditions in this county loans in amounts comparable with those received in other counties could not be granted here. In spite of the high value of specialized crops of this section, including citrus products, after agitation was started, however, money began flowing into Orange county in increasing amounts.

LONGFELLOWS
BECOME ACTIVE

Dormant since last year, the Longfellows club is being revived at the Santa Ana Junior college with the new members pledging themselves to make life more worth living for the club over six feet tall.

Organized in 1930, the club attained national prominence in its campaign to have awnings raised in the business district, its annual fashion show, when members dressed in feminine attire, and with the comical floats entered in parades throughout the country.

It is expected that nearly 50 men in the junior college will join the club, following an enthusiastic organization gathering this week. Milton Newcomer, shortest man on the jaycee faculty, has been retained in his former position as faculty adviser and Art Casey has been chosen president.

Two objectives of the club at the present time are the staging of the fourth annual fashion show and a petition to the city council to have awnings raised again. The shows are hilarious affairs since the fixturers don all types of women's clothes. The awnings have been raised several times in recent years, since few of the sun shades conform to the seven-foot clearance ordinance.

Two honorary alumni members were named at the meeting: John "Sky" Dunlap, former student body president and club organizer, and Roy Wheeler, former student secretary and now bookkeeper in the jaycee business office.

In addition to president Casey, the colleagues elected Clyde Westmoreland as vice president; Charles Greenleaf, secretary, and Al Copeland, treasurer. Others present at the meeting were Austin Joy, Dick Gardner, Robert Greer, Arthur Anderson, Ben Slavin, Bob Campbell, Ray McCall, Arthur Reed, Jack Scheel, Tom Davis, Charles Warner, Charles McFarland and Paul Jacques.

Belgium is the most densely populated country in Europe, having 656 inhabitants to the square mile.

Visit To Postoffice

Miss Briney's L9 business training class paid a recent visit to the post office. The group was conducted through the building by Flake Smith, assistant postmaster, and were shown various departments and the large vaults where stamps are kept. The vaults have alarms which set off tear gas to prevent theft of the stamps.

Assembly Program

A lower division assembly held recently, opened with the flag salute, followed by community singing led by Miss Davis. Marian Borchardt gave a reading and the Boys' Glee club, led by Miss Davis, sang two selections, accompanied by David Hunter. A very clever and humorous pantomime "When Mama's Away", was presented. The players were: Mother, Dorothy Oleson; father, Leon Lauderbach; daughter, Marguerite Pemental; first suitor, Bruce Buell; third suitor, Norman Haskell; fourth suitor, Kenneth Akin.

Tony Lobo, playing the saxophone, Floro Murrieta, playing the guitar, and Harry Adams, playing the clarinet, gave several numbers.

A reading was presented by Bruce Buell, followed by a guitar duet by Glenn Layton and Mary Jane Zink of Santa Ana high school. The girls' Glee club sang three numbers, "Amaryllis," "Happy Time", and "Japanese Sunset." The club was led by Miss Glancy and accompanied by Margaret Davis. Edward Budd was the announcer.

Perhaps the best type of machine ever built for moistening tobacco. Recently perfected from a model built in our factory and now used in the manufacture of Chesterfield Cigarettes.

the cigarette that's Milder • the cigarette that TASTES BETTER

This picture shows the machines used to remove the stems from Chesterfield tobaccos.

THIS most modern way of moistening tobacco for stemming—first used in the manufacture of Chesterfields—opens up the pores and puts the tobacco in condition to remove the stems.

The tobacco is put into the wire baskets stems down and enters the long steel ovens where the steam comes up from below, softening the stems without wetting the rest of the leaf.

The stems are removed by stemming machines of the latest type.

Everything that modern science knows about, or money can buy, that can make a milder cigarette, a cigarette that tastes better, is used in making Chesterfield.

The bride-elect was very charming in a soft lace frock of powder blue, and decorative appointments throughout the home had been chosen to harmonize with her costume.

Early in the evening Mrs. Clarence Nison was asked to give Negro dialect readings. Using an ironing board and a basket supposedly filled with clothes in illustration of her first number, Mrs. Nison then presented the basket, heaped high with gifts, to Miss Coons. After Miss Coons had opened the packages, tables were placed for bridge, tallies and score pads were in furtherance of a pastel color theme.

Ebell Section Decides Upon April Date for Benefit Bridge

It seemed rather a happy coincidence Friday that all three hostesses at the March meeting of Ebell's Fourth Household Economics section, should happen to be newcomers to the section group, and be entertaining at their first luncheon for the remaining members. They were Mrs. J. F. Richards, Miss Lucy Carter and Mrs. W. H. McDonald, and they succeeded in presenting one of the most enjoyable in a long series of similar hospitalities.

A green and white color scheme gave a cool and delightful effect to the one large table where the inviting menu was served. Green ribbons blocked the white linen into squares, and fern fronds worked out a geometric design centered by a cluster of white sweet peas and green foliage flanked by slender green tapers.

Between the intervals of luncheon and bridge, Miss Emma Williams of the Visel studio, gave an entertaining program. Her own dramatic readings were keenly enjoyed, as was the clever work of a group of her young pupils, Doris Lorraine Faupel, Marjorie Coe, Betty Jeanne Stevens and Richard Walton. One of their numbers was a pretty little sketch, "Peg O' My Heart."

In the business interval, plans were made for a benefit card party on Monday afternoon, April 2, in the clubhouse, and Mrs. S. A. Jones was named as general chairman. Bridge occupied the remainder of the afternoon, and prizes of lovely flowers were won by Mrs. Jones and Mrs. A. Thorndike.

Amber Circle

Approximately 60 members of Amber circle assembled in Masonic temple this week to enjoy the hospitality extended by a group of seven hostesses at luncheon followed by cards and sewing.

Mrs. J. W. Hancock, M. C. Hoyt, Henry Diers, Arthur Pease, Alice Pannell, Florence Hawkins and Howard Andrews comprised the hostess group. They had prepared an appetizing luncheon served to the accompaniment of many bright dainties in white and gold holders. Tables were arranged for groups of twelve each. The majority of the guests devoted the afternoon to bridge in which prizes were taken by Mrs. Bertha Berry and Miss Tiede. Of those who preferred needlework, Mrs. Cora Rugg took the sewing prize.

Evening Ceremony Read In Home of Bride's Parents

Invited to an informal reception honoring Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Bement Friday evening, March 9, relatives and friends of the young couple were surprised indeed to learn that they were to be present for the ceremony at which Miss Virginia Hartley became Mrs. Bement.

The home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hartley, West Walnut street, was setting for the quiet ceremony. Mr. Bement is son of Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Bement, 761 East Chestnut street.

Miss Elsie Bell Hurd at the piano played "I Love You Truly" for the entrance for the couple, continuing to play softly while the Rev. Harry Evan Owings, pastor of First Baptist church, read the service. The bride wore a white wool swag suit with a corsage bouquet of vivid red roses.

A beautifully decorated wedding cake was served during the reception. Stocks and other pretty blooms served as decorations. The new Mr. and Mrs. Bement left for a week end stay at Laguna Beach, returning here to be joined by Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Bement on a trip to Berdoo camp, just north of Inlio. The bridegroom is employed there with the Metropolitan Water company.

Birthday Surprise is Carried Out With Success

An interesting event of Friday evening was the party which the Rev. C. D. Hicks and Mrs. Hicks presented at their home, 1222 South Broadway, as a surprise celebration of the fourth birthday anniversary of their son, Merlon Hicks.

By a clever ruse, Mrs. Hicks detained her son on the side porch of the home while his friends quietly gathered, and his return to the living room was signal for their concerted birthday greetings.

Various games were played amidst the bright-hued spring flowers arranged about the house, and late in the evening Mrs. Hicks served a decorated birthday cake with ice cream and candy.

Merlon was presented with many attractive gifts by his guests who included Lyle Vandewalker, Cecil Webber, C. R. Lemon, Winford Brown, Orville Webber, Biles Detling, Herbert Clark, Robert Veltine, Alvin Miner, Carl Mustel, Mr. and Mrs. Faylord Hicks and the hosts, the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Hicks.

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

EAT AND GROW SLIM Breakfast

Choice of—
Baked apple
Sliced orange
Rhubarb sauce
1 poached egg on
1 thin slice toast
1 tsp. butter for toast
1 cup coffee with
1-4 cup hot skim milk, no sugar.
Calory total, 325.

Two inquiries have come in regarding the use of saccharin in preparation of food for these diet menus; saccharin is safe to use in moderation—diabetics use it when food is unpalatable because of lack of sugar. It is a material one hundred times sweeter than sugar, consequently care must be used until one acquires one's self with saccharin cooking. I find that half of a saccharin tablet makes coffee unpleasantly sweet for me. When cereals cannot be enjoyed without sugar, add a tablet to the milk used with cereal. In cooking fruits add the saccharin after the fruit is cooked and partially cool. For a pint of rhubarb sauce use 4 to 6 saccharin tablets, stirred until they have melted. More may be added if the sauce is not sweet enough, of course.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Bran-Nut Butter Rolls

1 yeast cake
1 medium potato, sliced
2 cups hot water
1 tsp. sugar
1-2 tps. salt
2 cups white flour
2 cups bran
1 extra cup white flour
Butter, about 4 tbsps.
12 whole walnut meats chopped coarsely.

Put a mush in the two cups of water and slice the potato. Boil water, press through a sieve and measure to be sure you have exactly two cups of liquid and potato. When this is tepid, crumble the yeast cake into it and stir until well dissolved. Add salt, sugar and flour to make a thick batter, adding a little extra if too thin.

Sift a little flour onto the board and a quantity of bran, for the bran is kneaded into the rolls, not stirred in. Turn the sponge out and work until it has taken up the amount on the board (1 cup bran, 1-3 cup white flour). Put dough into a buttered bowl, cover and let rise until double in bulk. Again turn onto a bran floured board, cut the coarsely chopped nuts into the dough, mould lightly, then prepare for the pans. Pinch off good sized pieces of dough, flatten out, cut a teaspoonful of bits of butter on it and fold up with the top rather rough looking. Set in buttered muffin tins and let rise until feathery light. Bake in a quick oven and serve hot.

The recipe makes a good dozen rolls and one small loaf of bread or three dozen rolls in all.

Each unbuttered roll has a calory value of 55. While bread is distinctly in the starch class, it carries almost as much protein as beef. In this particular recipe the bran supplies a valuable vitamin and some organic iron, the element which puts roses in our cheeks.

Tuesday: Onion Souffle. A good dish for the Lenten season, and a dish which supplies organic sulphur more agreeably than we used to get the annual spring dose of sulphur in molasses.

ANN MEREDITH.

CONTRADICTORY BIBLE PASSAGE SERMON TOPIC

Last night at the Broadway and Walnut Church of Christ, Evangelist J. W. Bates discussed the subject, "The Cost of Discipleship." He said in part:

"There is a passage in the New Testament that seems contradictory to every human impulse—if any man cometh unto me and hateth not his own father, and mother, and wife and children, and brethren, and sisters, yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple." (Luke 14:26). Are we compelled to cast aside the dearest and best in life—to hate the bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh?

"One could not hate his father who has tenaciously cared for, guided, and molded the dreams of boyhood into the ideal of manhood; one could not hate the mother whose life trembled in the balance and was suspended, quivering on the pivot near death—no, I could not hate my mother, nor my brothers nor sisters to aspire to discipleship. I cherish my own life for which the Bible says a man will give all that he has.

"But the expression 'to hate' is not always used in the same significance. Today, it means, 'to despise,' 'to abhor,' 'to detest,' but it has not always been used in this sense throughout the Bible where expressions of emotion and physical passion are comparative in their nature. In Matt. 19:27 it says, 'He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me.' In Gen. 29:30, 31, we learn that the reason Jacob hated Leah was because he loved Rachel, his other wife, more than Leah.

"Therefore, the test of Christian discipleship rests in loving Christ more than immediate family, business, or even life itself."

"Looking Ahead" from "In the Never Failing Light." Mrs. Kennedy made a short talk on this day's topic.

Since this was the last meeting of the current year, reports were given by retiring officers. Mrs. Anna Scott presented temperance items.

REV. SCHROCK IN FINDING GOD SUNDAY SERMON IN CRISIS IS ON LOST SOULS SERMON TOPIC

"A person who has a hard, bitter, unforgiving spirit is a lost soul," said Perry F. Schrock in his sermon at the First Congregational church yesterday morning. "According to the standards of Jesus," continued Mr. Schrock, "such a person is just as much lost as the poor fellow who falls into the gutter, the victim of beasts and pitfalls of modern society."

Mr. Schrock said in part: "We are trying to discover what is a Christian standard, a Christian attitude, a Christian spirit. There is no better way to get this information than to go back to Jesus and discover what were His standards, His attitude, His spirit. This morning we want to think about folks who are lost. Who is lost? What is the Christian attitude towards these people? Jesus said that He came to seek and to save the lost.

"Jesus did not discuss this question in an academic way. He simply told three stories and these three stories describe four different kinds of lost folks. The three stories are 'The Lost Sheep,' 'The Lost Coin,' and 'The Lost Son.'"

"Some people are lost like sheep. They do not intend to become lost but they wander away and become separated from the rest of the flock. The sheep in Jesus story had probably fallen over a cliff on the hillside. Or perhaps it was injured by some beast of prey. And so some sheep-like people today become the victims of human beasts of prey or fall into the pitfalls that modern society permits to exist. We are making the discovery that many of our people, young and old, are becoming the victims of the legal liquor laws that we voted into existence.

"Some people are like lost coins. They are not suffering; they are not doing anything wrong. They are simply doing nothing. That lost coin had the power to buy bread and clothing or other necessities for that family. People who are lost coins need to be saved from uselessness to usefulness. If the lost coins of our churches were thus saved the world would be a much safer place for the sheep-like folks. We could soon get rid of many of the pitfalls of society into which so many people are lost.

"We talk about the story of the prodigal son. It is really a story of two sons—both of them lost. The younger son went away into a far country and there wasted, not only the money his father gave him but also the personal powers that his Heavenly Father had bestowed upon him. He was a lost soul. But the brother who remained at home was as much lost as the one who went away. Because of his hard, bitter, unforgiving spirit he was really farther from his father's house than the brother when he was in a far country.

"The person who has a hard, bitter, unforgiving spirit is a lost soul and needs to be saved. He is as much lost as the poor fellow who falls into the gutter, the victim of beasts and pitfalls of modern society.

Who are the lost? The people who wander away and get into difficulty individually. They get into difficulty because of evils we permit to exist. The people who are like lost coins—useless—are lost too. There is enough power in the lost people of this kind to transform the world. The person who wastes his life—deliberately wastes it—is also lost. To save him would be to get him to use his powers in useful service.

The unforgiving elder brother is a lost soul and probably the hardest to save. But he can be saved. That hard spirit can be made tender; that bitter spirit can become sweet; that unforgiving spirit can be converted and be made into a forgiving spirit."

Taking his text from Isaiah 6:1 "In the year that King Uzziah died I saw the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up; and his train filled the temple," the Rev. C. M. Aker, pastor of Spurgeon Memorial Methodist Church, South, spoke yesterday on the sermon topic "Finding God in the Present Crisis."

He said in part: "The prophet Isaiah lived and prophesied for fifty years during the decline, downfall and final destruction of the national government of God's chosen people. It was literally a crisis. The word crisis taken from the Greek through the Latin into our English language, was originally used as a medical term, to mark that point in the disease when the patient must either turn to recovery and sound health, or to a state beyond recovery followed by sure death.

"Isaiah tells us in his preface to his prophecy, which was written near the close of his fifty years of pleading with his people, that the crisis was issuing, not in recovery, as he had hoped, but in the patient growing steadily worse toward final destruction. Says he in the first chapter of his prophecy, speaking of the national condition, 'The hole head is sick, and the whole heart faint. From the sole of the foot even unto the head there is no soundness in it. Your country is desolate; your cities are burned with fire; your land, strangers devour it in your presence, and it is desolate, as overthrown by strangers. Except Jehovah of hosts had left unto us a very small remnant, we should have been as Sodom and Gomorrah.'"

"Isaiah, the most important and influential citizen in the city of Jerusalem, did his best to get his people to turn to God, instead of seeking by compromises alliances with the surrounding pagan nations. One day, we find him at the temple denouncing in scathing terms the hollowness and hypocrisy of the worshippers, and their mechanical round of dead ritualism, at another time, we see him take his stand on a fashionable thoroughfare of the city, and rebuke the pompous rich, for building up their enormous fortunes on the misery and degradation of the ignorant and helpless poor; on another occasion, he forces his way into the very presence of the King and his advisers and denounces the iniquity of their compromising alliances with foreign powers. In every section of the religious, social and political life his voice is heard and his protest is felt though unheeded.

"It is interesting and instructive to us today to look into the secret of such a life as this, and find if we can, where lay its power and its wonderful endurance through one of the most critical times in the history of nations. We find an account of it given us in this bit of personal history recorded in the sixth chapter of prophecy. He says, 'In the year that King Uzziah died, I saw the Lord, high and lifted up; and his train filled the temple; like Paul on the Damascus road, and Luther on the sacred stairs, and John Wesley in the chapel in Aldersgate, Isaiah had his vision, that sent him out to dare and bare the insults and the persecutions, and finally a martyr's death, in one of the dark and godless periods in the world's history.

"Instead of the distressing times through which he was passing driving him to God, it rather drove him to God. It was when the support of even his hero King Uzziah was taken from him, that he had this vision of the greatness and holiness of God, which led to a vision of his own sinfulness and an understanding of the real condition of the people.

He thought that with the death of his monarch, all was lost. But as sometimes when winter removes the mass of leaves and foliage that stands between us and the distant view of the hills and the vast expanse of ocean beyond, so it was when this near and aggressive hero king was removed, that Isaiah saw the real greatness and goodness of God.

"And so it is through this present crisis through which we are passing. There are some it may be only a remnant, who have learned the same great truth and made the same discovery, that of the utility of all mere material and earthly things, and the dependability and the reality of God. They can sing with understanding what before was mere fiction and empty sentiment. 'Other refuge have I none, hangs my helpless soul on Thee.'

"It is true this vision for Isaiah meant a very bitter, and from a worldly standpoint, an unsuccessful task. And it may mean for us a life of continued hardship and sacrifice. But what matters if only we have a clear conscience and the sweet assurance that we belong to that triumphant minority which seeks to bring in the Kingdom of God in which His will shall be done finally in all the relationships of mankind."

BRIGADIER OF SALVATIONISTS TELLS PROGRAM

Brigadier Arthur D. Jackson, head of the Salvation Army in Southern California, yesterday addressed the soldiers and officers of Santa Ana in the citadel here.

"Salvationists are first, last and all the time for true religion," the brigadier pointed out in his talk. "It is a warfare organization, but its first duty to mankind is to teach and preach the religion of Jesus Christ."

"Our organization is neither Catholic, Jew nor Protestant. It is an organization with a military personnel, whose purpose is to take to the human family the bread of life, not forgetting that the earthly bread is important and that men must eat. You cannot preach to a man who is hungry and get results."

Brigadier Jackson declares that audiences in the United States which annually hear the gospel of the Salvation Army, aggregate nearly 25,000,000 people.

Every branch of Salvationist work is maintained in this city, where the corps cares for both the religious and welfare needs of its constituency.

Christian Science

"Man" was the subject of the lesson-sermon yesterday at the Santa Ana First Church of Christ, Scientist. The Golden Text was from I John 3:1: "Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God."

Among the Scriptural selections in the lesson-sermon were the verses from Matthew: "And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people. But when he saw the multitudes, he was moved with compassion on them, because they fainted, and were scattered abroad, as sheep having no shepherd. Then saith he unto his disciples, The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth labourers into his harvest."

One of the passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, stated: "Divine truth is life, and love gave Jesus authority over sin, sickness, and death. His mission was to reveal the Science of celestial being, to prove what God is and what He does for man."

URGES PRAYER TO AID WORLD SOLVE PROBLEM

"Can We Have What We Want as Christians?" was the question discussed yesterday morning by the Rev. Walter Scott Buchanan for the congregation of the First Christian church. His answer was based on the text in John 14, "If ye shall love one another, that I do so shall also . . . . Whatsoever ye ask in my name, that will I do."

"What marvelous words are these, and what power there is in them to bring us before the Father," the pastor said referring to the text. "Jesus was always reaching for the weak and those astray, to lead them to God. There is enough power in those words to revolutionize the world."

"You who are in trouble, lean upon Him, turn to Him for strength and guidance. You will find peace and power if you believe in Him and follow Him. The humblest home will be bright and happy if Jesus is there."

"Jesus asks us to put our trust in Him and then we can have what we want. Oh, why can't we understand it and follow Him?"

"Men who lost their wealth often learn Jesus is all they need to be happy. Jesus brings life and immortality. That's worth more than all the world. Jesus is brighter than gold, more alluring than pearls."

"Greater things than Jesus did, we can do. He raised the dead, healed the lame and blind. But we can bring a soul to Jesus and His power and happiness."

"Yes, you can have what you want. What do you want more than peace and happiness and forgiveness? How can we have it? Through prayer. It is natural for a Christian to want to pray."

"This world must understand that God lives and that He is willing to help. Great things can be done when the church is praying. The trouble is that people are not praying as they should. God is listening, but He does not hear heart touching prayers from His children. If you believe and reach out, God will bless you. It's time we were praying."

"There is only one way to redeem the world. That is through Jesus. There is no other way. You can try, money, education, psychology. All fail. These are the days when we must talk to God about our soul's salvation."

"Jesus taught us how to pray, first adoration, then thanks, then petition. Ask for only one thing, 'Lord, thy kingdom come; thy will be done on earth.' Let us be careful not to try to do most will instead of God's. Then will come peace and the roaring of wars will cease. Tomorrow the wars will come because Christians have forgotten to pray, have forgotten God."

"Will you let Him lead you?"

Is This Too Good for Your Cough?

Creomulsion may be a better help than you need. It combines seven major helps in one—the best helps known to science. It is made for quick relief, for safety.

Mild coughs often yield to lesser helps. No one can tell. No one knows which factor will do most for any certain cough. So careful people, more and more, are using Creomulsion for any cough that starts.

The cost is a little more than a single help. But your druggist guarantees it, so it costs nothing if it fails to bring you quick relief. Coughs are danger signals. For safety's sake, deal with them in the best way known—Adv.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KING

The little nymph clung to the line and shouted, "Gee, but this is fine. Please swing your fish pole 'round and 'round. I'll hang on good and tight."

"I seldom get a ride like this. It's something that I'd hate to miss. As long as you don't jerk too hard, I know I'll be all right."

The Tinties watched him for a while. Then Duncy shouted for a smile, "Aw, pull that fellow in to shore. Then swing me in the air."

"I, too, can hang on safe and sound, while you are swinging me around." The fisherman replied. "Oh, no! I really wouldn't dare."

"You see, you are a heavy lad. If I swung you, 'twould be too bad. I know my pole would break and then you'd flop into the sea. Instead, I'll hand the nymph right here. He'll fill you Tinties full of cheer with stunts that he can do. He is as clever as can be."

Then, in the nymph came, on the fly. Wee Scouty grabbed, as he whizzed by, and caught the fellow by the foot. The nymph cried, "Good for you!"

"I'm glad to join this merry bunch, and now I have a happy hunch. I'm going to entertain you all with things that I can do."

"Have you seen a fish dance on the sea? Of course not! Well, tots, just watch me. I have a magic flute right here that I am going to play."

"Big fish will swim up from the deep to dance, and perfect time they'll keep." "Oh, I would love to see them," Golly shouted. "Hip, hooray!"

The nymph produced the flute and then a very strange thing happened when sweet music filled the air. Two great big fish jumped into sight.

The strange lad cried, "I told you so! The fish are awaying to and fro. It took me years to train them, but I finally trained them right!"

(The water nymph does another stunt in the next story.)

CANADA'S MOUNTIES PUT TO SEA To GET Their MAN

*Now comes the marine engine as the latest steed of the rapidly mechanizing
Royal Mounted Police*

By James Montagnes

THE Mounties have taken to the sea. On December 6, 1933, the constable on lookout duty on the cutter Stumble Inn spied a long rakish motorboat rushing through the heavy seas seven miles off Flint Island, Nova Scotia. The cutter's engines were given full speed ahead, and she started to overhaul the motorboat.

On board the speeding motorboat the lookout sighted the Stumble Inn, passed the word along, and her engines opened full. The Stumble Inn could not keep up with the faster pace of the motorboat. A shot rang out from her forward gun, passed over the motorboat, and plunged in the sea.

The motorboat did not slacken its pace, instead seemed to speed even more. A second shot passed over her. This time her engines stopped, she wallowed in the heavy seas. The police cutter came alongside, came as near as it could in the high seas, and a boat with three men was lowered.

The rowboat was picked up by the motorboat's crew. A tow line was passed from the Stumble Inn to the motorboat, and the police went aboard. They found the holds filled with liquor on its way to Canada. The captain and his crew were placed under arrest, and a prize crew of four policemen went aboard the motorboat, the Kromhout.

A course was set by the Stumble Inn for Sydney on Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia. The going was hard but progress was made. Then the tow line snapped, and the rumrunner fell adrift. A boat from the police cutter brought a second tow line. It held, tautened and the captor and captured once more headed for port.

Darkness comes pretty early in December, and after some hours of running towards Sydney, a policeman on duty at the cutter's end of the towline thought he saw a man approaching the Kromhout's end of the towline. He thought he saw the gleam of light on steel. A minute later the towline snapped, the Kromhout's engines were at work, and the motorship headed away from the police cutter at full speed.

Captain Croft of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police on the Stumble Inn gave chase. Handicapped by the slower speed of his boat, he kept the searchlights playing on the waters ahead. Sometimes they picked up the speeding Kromhout, headed not towards Sydney, but out to sea, towards the French islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon.

AS long as the lights kept the Kromhout in view the race continued. When the motorboat slipped into the darkness far ahead, the Stumble Inn turned about, and with full speed headed for Sydney.

Four Mounties kidnapped by rumrunners. That was the news that Captain Croft brought to headquarters when the Stumble Inn landed at Sydney. And the new sea service of the famous force showed it was no slower than the land service.

Radio, telephone and telegraph systems began to hum. To Ottawa, to Glace Bay, to St. Pierre, to Paris, the messages sped. Down at the docks, three other police boats fueled up and sped into the darkness, while the Stumble Inn took on fuel and provisions for a long cruise.

The powerful trans-Atlantic and ship radio station at Glace Bay sent word out to all shipping to watch for the Kromhout, with its crew of eight and its four captured Mounties. Telephone and telegraph messages to all small ports along shore asked the local boats to put out the port which it thought safe. Her captain had not figured on the fast work of the new sea service of the force. He had hoped just to land his kidnaped policemen, refuel and start out again to land his cargo of liquor in Canada.

He had no sooner stepped ashore than he was placed under arrest. His crew followed him to jail. And the prize crew once more became a prize crew. They and the eight rumrunners and the Kromhout landed in Halifax a few days later.

Soon the Kromhout will speed under police control after other rumrunners. The Stumble Inn was once a rumrunner on Lake Erie, till it was captured in 1924 by Canada's coastguards.

No, the sea-going Mounties do not wear the wide stetson hats, the scarlet tunic, high boots and jingling spurs, when at work.

CONSTABLE J. E. AUBIE was on motor car patrol in New Brunswick near Shippigan. From a high hill on his route he sighted a ship about seven miles out. That was in the late afternoon. He came back to Shippigan, boarded the patrol boat Neguac, took along a special constable and the crew of the patrol boat, and started out to sea to investigate the craft.

About midnight he saw a light flashing about half a mile distant. The flashes were signals, for they were repeated, two short flashes each time. Silently the Neguac crept up on the boat flashing the signal.

When practically alongside, Aubie called the boat to stop. The rumrunners were so surprised, they immediately surrendered. Three rumrunners and 60 gallons of liquor were left in charge of the special constable. Aubie went off for more game as soon as he had got his prize safely in harbor.

There is plenty of other work for the sea service of the Mounties. Having gone to sea, they now have taken on the job that the coastguard carried on, and that includes the rescue of ships in distress.

While patrolling off Gaspe Peninsula one dark November day, the lookout on the police cutter Baroff sighted a sailboat practically upon the rocks. Coming nearer, two men were seen in the boat. They were taken on board, hungry, cold and wet.

They were fishermen. Their boat had been blown out by a north gale, their sails had been ripped while they tried to head in to the shore, and their engine had broken down by the continued deluge of salt water.

THEY would have hit the rocks, but seeing the Baroff approaching, had managed to keep off the rocks till the police boat came up. They were for abandoning their ship, but the police boat towed it to port, in a biting northeast gale.

Activities of the sea going Mounties are not confined to the Atlantic coast. On the Great Lakes and along the Pacific coast the sea service of the force is on constant patrol for smugglers, rumrunners, violators of shipping regulations, and the other duties which are ordinarily accomplished by the coastguard.

Along the desolate Arctic coast of the northern mainland, in Hudson Bay, and in the waters of Baffin Bay which separates Greenland from Canada, the sound of police motorboats is heard regularly. In the Arctic the police boat has become a valuable ally of police work.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police now go to sea in boats which vary from such high-powered cruisers as the Stumble Inn to canoes with outboard motors.

No red coats or stetson hats—but they're "Mounties," just the same. . . . These are the four who were "kidnaped" by rum-runners, and then rescued. Left to right, they are Able Seaman M. D. MacDonald, Second Engineer J. McIntosh, Chief Officer F. M. MacKenzie and Able Seaman W. R. T. Oxford.

and look for the four Mounties on lonely spots of the shore or in the water.

The beam trans-Atlantic radio at Montreal with word from Ottawa sped messages to Hon. Philippe Roy, Canadian minister in Paris, for the arrest and extradition of the Kromhout's crew should it land at St. Pierre. And from Paris messages went from the French government to the colony to watch for the rumrunner.

THE Mounties usually get their man whether on land or on the sea.

The Kromhout slipped into St. Pierre under cover of darkness, having run hard all day for (Copyright, 1934 by EveryWeek Magazine.)

They dress like seamen, just as the Arctic Mountie on the trail dresses in furs from head to foot.

The sea-going Mounties are a development necessitated by new conditions. Horses once furnished all the mounts for the force. Now they number about 250 for a force of 2500. And the latest steed is the marine engine.

Two boats in one night is the record of one Mountie of the new sea-going service. He worked fast, too, for within 12 hours after first sighting the rumrunner on shore he was back at his headquarters, with the two boats, prisoners and liquor.

NOT TOO MUCH SYMPATHY FOR ANDREW MELLON

It will be extremely difficult for Andrew Mellon to create sympathy, at least to the tear point, by anything he may say concerning his taxes. The knowledge of the action he recommended, that would save him legally millions of dollars in taxes, and which was adopted by the government, is too close to our mind.

It would be strange indeed if Mr. Mellon had violated the letter of the law, when he had been in a position to practically determine what the law should be, with the full knowledge of its application to himself. As we read "Mellon's Millions" and recalled his various activities in relation to taxes, we could not help feeling that he had formulated the rules of the game of taxes pretty largely with himself in mind. With his power to do that and to save himself, if then he violated the rules, it would be humorous indeed.

We cannot help remembering also how, when Senator Couzens differed with Mr. Mellon and the chief executive, that an action was brought by the secretary of the treasury against Mr. Couzens for the recovery of back taxes. The close connection between Couzens' caustic criticism of the administration, and the assault by the treasury, was such that it could not help raising suspicion in many people's minds that the powerful position of the finance department of the government was used to punish those who dared to criticize.

It is a comfort to those who are inclined to humanitarian views to realize that Mr. Mellon would have no serious difficulty in meeting any financial claims that the government may have upon his income. As time goes on, we are rather prone to believe that the "greatest secretary of the treasury since Alexander Hamilton" will appear more luminous, not as a secretary of the treasury in the interest of all the people, but as a great example of one who worked his way up through the labyrinth of business and politics to a position of unquestioned power. It will be revealed that he used this position to increase his income by tariff monopolies upon such things as aluminum, and to protect himself from large payment in taxes, under the guise of protecting business generally.

While we may criticize Alexander Hamilton for some of his views in relation to the powers of the federal government, in spite of all that he did in establishing the credit of America; in insisting on the national government assuming the responsibility for the war debts of the colonies, he used none of his power to personal financial ends, and went back to his law practice in New York a poor man.

It would be interesting indeed to listen to a conference composed of the secretaries of the treasury of the past. We should like to hear their comments upon conditions of today. Hamilton, with his clear power of analysis, and his statesmanlike, constructive views, undoubtedly would stand out as the premier.

But many others would be close, and away down the line, after eliminating such men as Albert Gallatin, yes, and John Sherman, would come the man of millions from Pittsburgh, who happened to fall into the position at a time of our most marvelous financial expansion. The others were thinking in terms of national and international affairs. Our more recent noted secretary approaches it from the standpoint of a man personally interested, and exceedingly "practical."

A man in Maine has eyes that are supposed to magnify objects 100 times. Isn't it his tongue that magnifies what the eyes see?

A COSTLY LESSON LEARNED

One big value has come out of the attempt to have the army take over the United States air mail work. It demonstrates that with all the money put in this department of defense, and all the agitation carried on on behalf of the development of our army air service, that probably the ability of the fliers, who belong to the civilian group, to do in times of stress and difficulty, is greater than that of the army.

It must be extremely humiliating to the men, who have this department in charge, to find that their army aviators could not even scout their routes without destruction. Of course it would be unbecoming our chief executive at this moment to find fault with the situation, but we have no doubt but that underneath the surface there is considerable agitation and investigation being made.

It is well that we learned this condition before the necessity was upon us. It is not the regular routine work that is needed particularly in war service. It is the extraordinary thing, and for what to them was the extraordinary thing, there seemed to be great lack of preparation.

But the public should remember that this is not as serious, compared with the civilian service, as some of the newspapers would have it appear. As we have pointed out constantly and repeatedly, airplanes of the big corporations have met disaster; pilots and passengers have lost their lives. Since the army took over flying the mail nearly as many lost their lives in one civilian plane as the total number of army pilots who met their death.

It is a big relief to know, in any case, that those organizations guilty of fraud upon the government, shall not be permitted to continue their contracts and will not have new ones until they have purged their membership of the guilty ones.

"KILLED BY ITS FRIENDS"

Apropos of an editorial in the Register the other day on the disappointments of the new liquor program, an editorial which appeared in the Los Angeles Times yesterday is interesting reading. We quote from it in part:

For more than three months no unfriendly hand has been laid on that brand-new palladium of our liberties, the Twenty-first Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

The free and independent citizen, secure in his guaranteed right to drink what, when, where and as much as he likes, may point to himself as an example of democracy in full flower. The reformers have been "shown" and anyone who does not like the way this free and independent citizen drives may jolly well stay at home.

It is not a little disappointing to those that really expected (and to that other group that fervently hoped) repeal would perform some of the miracles prophesied for it, to be brought face to face with the record of the first quarter. So many things were promised—so few have eventuated.

There was to be, if memory has not defaulted, an immediate restoration of respect for and obedience to law. Crime would abate. Money would flow into public coffers in a steady stream. Taxes would be lower. Young people would turn from the primrose path. Those who preferred tea or a chocolate sundae to a gin fizz or a highball were to be protected in their preference; protected by the Army and Navy if need be.

A series of articles by Chapin Hall recently printed in The Times shows that not a single one of the promises so fluently made in the name of repeal have been kept. On the contrary, crime and criminal flourish as never before; drunkenness in Los Angeles city is at an all-time peak; the ease with which children may and do procure liquor within a stone's throw of their classrooms is a public scandal; more intoxicated women by 130 per cent are falling into the hands of a reluctant constabulary. Regulatory laws, such as they are in California, are administered in a haphazard and completely inefficient manner, but always with ear cocked to hear the "voice of the people" as interpreted by those to whom repeal means elimination of all verbiage.

Never in the palmiest days of the "Gay '90s" when the corner saloon was the "poor man's club" and the "Face on the Bar-room Floor" a tear-compelling ballad, was it so easy to secure booze as it is in California today. Never was alcohol flaunted in the face of all and sundry from more unlikely places and never was such alluring propaganda so freely circulated extolling the virtues of So and So's gin or This and That's whiskey.

Would it not be the part of wisdom to stop, look and listen at this three-month crossroads; to take account of stock and use the old bean a bit? Let's get organized on a decent, working basis. Public approval has been unsolicited given repeal, but no such approval has authorized license to debauch our children or to kill those who must at all times move about on foot, and the public certainly will not long tolerate the mishandling of the new order by those whose interests are primarily political.

Certainly we will get nowhere but to chaos unless a sharp turn is taken in the present runaway program. Give repeal a chance. Perhaps it can be made to work. A majority of those who took the trouble to vote thought so and it is at least entitled to a fair trial.

While The Times opposed its enactment, it recognizes that the Twenty-first Amendment is not getting a square deal from those who should be its best friends. In fact, it is being killed by them—and rapidly.

Our National Income

Oakland Tribune

Available now are figures on the national income produced in the United States in 1933 as compared to that of the year before. The showing is $9.8 billion dollars, as against $8.3 billion dollars, or a gain of 15 billion.

The report attracts the more attention because in three years, 1930 to 1932, the national income declined continuously from $8 billion in 1929, to $7.5 billion in 1930, to $7.3 billion in 1931, and to $7.2 billion in 1932. The figures on a per capita basis show even more strikingly than do those of total national income the decline that took place from 1929 to 1932. These figures are: 1929, $683; 1930, $672; 1931, $640; 1932, $607. In 1933 per capita income was the lowest in 24 years, being only $7 above the per capita figure for 1909, the first year in the Conference Board's series of national income estimates.

The Conference Board has developed a continuous series of estimates of national income produced covering the period 1909 to 1933, by correlating and supplementing estimates for shorter periods made by the United States Department of Commerce, the Federal Trade Commission, and the National Bureau of Economic Research. These estimates show an almost continuous increase from $7.2 billion in 1909 to $7.3 billion in 1920, followed by a precipitous decline to $7.2 billion in 1921. Then occurred another rise to $7.5 billion in 1922, with some fluctuations from year to year, to $8.3 billion in 1929. Finally came the dramatic decline in the depression years from the peak of $8.3 billion in 1929 to $7.2 billion in 1932, followed by the upturn to $9.8 billion in 1933.

Chances Are Slim

Washington Post

It will be only a matter of time, if Federal agents maintain their recent high average, before the men who kidnaped Edward G. Bremer, the St. Paul banker, and extracted a $200,000 ransom from his distracted father, are apprehended. In only two other cases out of the nine outstanding kidnappings of the past twelve months have the Federal agents failed to catch their quarry. In one of those cases arrests were made, but a jury acquitted.

Kidnaping is the stupid form of extorting money. Its brutality lies in the torture to which it subjects the victim and his family. It is hazardous because while it is easy to "snatch" a victim, it is extremely difficult to make safe contacts with those who are expected to pay the ransom. The stupidity of kidnaping, from the criminal standpoint, is that few ever "get away with it." There was a brief time in which great sums were paid for the return of the victims and kidnappers seemed to be having things their own way. But a study of statistics, particularly since the Federal Government got into the field, would convince anybody except a moron—and many criminals are morons—that it is a form of crime that does not pay.

Harvey Bailey and his gangsters are spending a lifetime in prison. Sankey, backed into the corner, took his own life. A roll call of kidnappers would show the leading figures dead, imprisoned or nervous fugitives within a narrowing circle of retribution.

Chubb Stubbs is there with pep and zip, He tells the tackles every trip, And grabs the half backs with a grip Which ain't exactly tentative. But under age, alas, is he; In fact he's only twenty-three, And so of course he cannot be A U. S. representative.

In Congress there is many a mutt As old and mildewed as King Tut. They could not make a touch-down but They're drawing down their salaries. And all they ever have to do, Is talk or sleep the hours through— Or maybe make a speech or two To empty, gaping galleries.

Chubb Stubbs, the day he graduates Should work for these United States And help to prune the income rates— He needs the honorarium. The men he says who now are there Have either bald or silver hair. And should be in the nation's care In some nice sanitarium.

Why let these poor old dotards make The laws that other people break, Or vainly try to keep awake Upon the people's charity? Why should the constitution stay The lads who've shown that they can play. And also, on election day Would prove their popularity?

Thoughts On Modern Life

By GLENN FRANK

SCIENCE AND THE SOCIAL COLLAPSE

It is significant that the other day Karl T. Compton, distinguished head of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and chairman of The Science Advisory Board of the Federal Government, together with other eminent scientists, made a carefully documented defense of the service of science to this generation.

There is something new under the sun. Until the social collapse that has stood threateningly at our windows since 1929 the uncritical masses brought a near idolatry to Science. As the ancients thought the Lord would provide, so the moderns thought Science would provide. Nothing seemed impossible. We could, so we thought, always trust the scientist to pull the rabbit out of the hat at the moment of necessity.

And then, as the old movie titles used to say, came the collapse. Men everywhere began to wonder, in a half-whimical and half-resentful way, whether all this elaborate expenditure on research was worth the candle if at the end the best science and technology could give us was a breadline crowded with capable workmen.

The whole climate of opinion in which scientific research must be administered has been radically altered since 1929, and is today marked by three shifts in mood, to-wit:

(1) A growing dissatisfaction with the tag ends of an era which a laissez faire science has thrust into a laissez faire society—a bewildering array of new facts and new forces that have produced extensive maladjustments and imposed severe strains on the traditional structures and functions of our political, social and economic orders.

(2) A growing disillusionment with a process of research in which the production of new knowledge has not been accompanied by an effective effort to prevent its application from causing more trouble than it cures.

(3) A growing determination to bring a larger measure of deliberate planning and social control to the direction of political, social and economic development.

This is the new mood, the scientists must meet, and in the meeting, they have the chance to make science the faithful servant instead of the Frankenstein of mankind.

SELF HELP

"Hurry up now and put your shoes on, Martin."

"I want to tie them myself."

"Now don't fuss. You know you can't tie them. Put them on and I'll lace them up and tie them for you. That's a good boy. Hurry."

"I want to lace them. Let me lace them myself."

"All right. Go ahead and see what you can do. It seems to me that the morning I am in a hurry is the morning you pick out to be just as contrary as you possibly can."

Martin, too busy to hear or heed, laced his shoes. It was a noble effort but a poor enough achievement. One hole was skipped and the laces were misplaced. But the knot was tight. Double tied.

"There, I knew it. Look at the mess you made out of those laces. Now I have to undo it all and take twice the time. You are enough to try the patience of a saint. Put your foot up."

"No, no. Leave them that way. They're all right. Leave them that way."

"You can't go to school with your laces like that, Martin. Stop this nonsense."

"I want to show the teacher. She told me to lace my own shoes and show her. I got to have them that way," and Martin displayed the bannery of war.

"Very well," Martin Whitehead. Have it your own way. Grandfather Whitehead will never be dead while you're alive. You'd rather go out looking like nobody's floor rag than give in to that you are wrong. I hope the teacher tells you what she thinks of you."

Martin did not quail at the idea of teacher's disapproval. He seemed satisfied with his victory and started off to school with all cheerfulness, even his hand at the mother to take his hand at the crossing.

Mother waited to speak to the Kindergarten teacher. She wanted her to know that she was not so careless of her son's appearance as the twisted shoelaces indicated. But Martin spoke first.

"See, Miss Louise, I laced them myself. Nobody helped me."

"Did you really, Martin? Great work. They're fine. And you tied the knots good and tight, didn't you?"
